What Is a Rich Man
5 Billion for Ford
Captain of Your Soul
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

BIG DAY in Wall St. all sales eclipsed, making $500,000 for a seat and a chance to do business seem a bargain

The tape couldn't keep up with orders and ran more than an hour late all day. "Nickel" and "Radio" caused hearts to beat faster, especially the hearts of poor bears that had gone "short."

Intelligent bears will change to the bull side or take a vacation for four years.

Income tax returns show 233 Americans with net incomes of $1,000,000 a year or more. The number has increased in two years by 52. Citizens reporting incomes of $5,000,000 or more number only TEN. There were fourteen of them in 1926.

Once a man with a million was considered rich. To be REALLY "rich" now you need $1,000,000 a year.

There are several billionaires in existence that modestly refrain from talking about it.

Henry Ford is past 60, but if his new car pays as well as he and others think it will, he will easily add five billions to his fortune in the next 20 years of his life.

How many automobiles can this country absorb? Henry Ford, in October, made 196,404 cars and trucks, and is now manufacturing at the rate of 6000 a day.

The Chevrolet Company has sold more than 1,000,000 cars thus far in 1928, and is breaking all of its records.

Do you remember when solemn bankers said the country was going to the dogs, financially, because people were buying about 1,000,000 cars a year, and refused to lend on automobiles?

Now the people are using 24,000,000 automobiles and buying at the rate of several millions more a year. And the nation doesn't seem to be bankrupt.

Many a young person has spouted:

"It matters not how strait the gate.
How charged with punishment the scroll.
I am the master of my fate.
I am the captain of my soul."

The Rev. E. H. Emmett, Congregationalist, says those who talk about being "captain of my soul" are only "whistling loudly in the dark," making "an outward noise to cover up an inward fear and disquiet."

It is hard to be sure that you are a captain of your soul in these modernist times. Scientists say you haven't any soul, anyhow, and you don't know where your soul is going later, if anywhere, or where this earth itself is going, with the sun dragging it along.

However, a man CAN be calm in an emergency, and that's what the poet meant.

It is said Governor Smith will officially eliminate himself from leadership of the Democratic party, and certain Democrats profess to be pleased, saying, "It opens the way to victory in 1932."

It also opens the way to dropping about 7,000,000 of the 15,000,000 votes polled by Governor Smith.

Where will Democrats find another leader to poll twice as many votes as any Democratic candidate for President ever had before?

The plain fact is, and any child can see it, that barring hard times, a dead and real cause for dissatisfaction, the presidential election of 1933 will be a formality.

Two paragraphs from an editorial in the New England News Letter of October 25, published by the New England Council

The new directory is, in fact, a challenge to New England business.

We know outsiders seeking to exploit the New England market will not be slow to take advantage of this "new tool for New England industry." We would like to see our own manufacturers, having an interest in the New England market, equally quick to use it for their advantage and the advantage of New England.

The publication of this new business directory emphasizes, as nothing else could, the economic unity of the New England area. As a means of realizing, utilizing, and advancing that unity, we estimate that it is worth more than ten thousand speeches, placed end to end. It also shows that New England is still pioneering, and continuing its contribution to the business development of the nation.

This is recognition of the possibilities of this new Business Telephone Directory.

Its listings of telephone numbers are the key to fast, reasonably-priced toll service for business, especially sales promotion.

SOS BULLETINS

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—The steamer American Shipper, which reported it had picked up 33 passengers and 90 members of the Vestris' crew, said in a later message that it could continue the search until dark and proceed then.

New London, Conn., Nov. 13 (AP)—Coastguard destroyer force headquarters announced destroyers Davis, Wilkes, Tucker and Shaw are near the spot where the Vestris was down and that the four destroyers have started a systematic sweeping of the ocean.

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Shipping Board was advised today by the steamship American Shipper that it had picked up 33 passengers and 90 members of the crew of the steamer Vestris and would stand by for several hours to pick up additional survivors.

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—Naval communications announced the receipt of a message from the American Shipper saying that only one of the Vestris' lifeboats and one raft had yet to be found. The message said merely:

"One boat and one raft still missing."

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 13 (INS)—Preparations were made to receive the survivors of the steamer Vestris. Throughout the night messages were received at the naval base radio station from the various

DEAD MAN FOUND ON VESTRIS 'RAFT'

One hundred and sixteen persons are missing from the sunken liner Vestris, 222 persons were saved today, and the first of the dead was found.

The U. S. S. Wyoming discovered five women, three men and a dead man aboard a makeshift raft rolling on the waves 250 miles off the Virginia Capes, where the Vestris went down.

Many of the missing men and women of the passengers and crew are believed to have been drowned.

Only one lifeboat is unaccounted for and the giant navy dirigible Los Angeles has been ordered to be ready to leave Lakehurst, N. J., at 6 o'clock to conduct a search from the air.

The 222 persons who were saved were picked up mostly in lifeboats by the French tanker Myriam, the freighter American Shipper and the North German Lloyd liner Berlin.

CAPTAIN OF VESTRIS "UNACCOUNTED FOR"

New York, Nov. 13 (INS)—New York agent's for [illegible] reported this afternoon that Capt. W. J. Carey of the Vestris was evidently not aboard the rescue ship Myriam as reported earlier. So far as they knew, Carey was still unaccounted for.

3:15 A. M.—"Sighted red flares latitude 37.18 north, longitude 70.38 west."—S. S. American Shipper.

4 A. M.—"One lifeboat."—S. S. American Shipper. (Static prevented the naval station picking up this full message.)

SHIPS IN THRILLING DEATH RACE

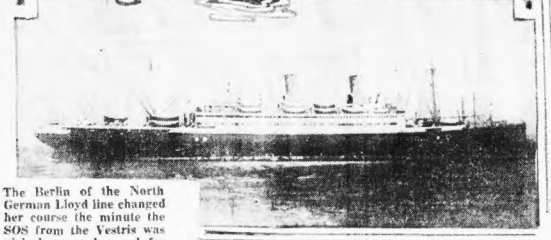
The U. S. S. Wyoming joined the rescue fleet early, having been ordered to the scene as she was one of the nearest federal ships.



The Berlin of the North German Lloyd line changed her course the minute the SOS from the Vestris was picked up and raced for the scene of disaster.

IS BELIEVED TO HAVE SPRUNG A LEAK IN STRUGGLE

The Myriam picked up two boatloads, numbering 63 survivors; the American Shipper took aboard 128 from three lifeboats, and the Berlin picked up two lifeboats with 22 from the Vestria.

Tht Berlin also found a survivor with a life-belt on, swimming in the open sea. He said he had been clinging to a timber for hours and reported having seen a woman and child clinging to a small raft a few hours before he was saved.

The five women picked up by the Wyoming were all passengers, while the three men were from the crew of the Vestris. Of those saved by the American Shipper 38 were passengers and 90 were members of the crew.

Survivors on Way to Port

Survivors will be on their way to port tonight, while the search for the missing will be continued by seven destroyers of the coast guard.

The American Shipper radioed it would search until dark, when it would have to start for port, because its fuel supply was nearly gone. It is expected to reach New York with its survivors late Wednesday or early Thursday.

The annals of the sea are greatly enriched by the story of the rescue efforts of the crew of this American merchant vessel, who led the way among seamen of five nations, including United States navy men and coast guards.

More Lifeboats Are Sighted, U. S. Ship Radios

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Radio Marine Corporation received the following radio message from the steamship American Shipper shortly after 5 o'clock this morning.

"About five miles north of position where found first lifeboat. Approaching four other lifeboats now."

BELIEVED ALL LEFT SHIP

New York, Nov. 13—The fact that Capt. William J. Carey, master of the Vestris had been picked up from a lifeboat by the French tanker Myriam indicates that all on board had left the ship.

Under the ancient tradition of the sea, the commander always is the last to desert his vessel.

The Vestri carried 10 lifeboats, but the radiograms intercepted up to late forenoon accounted for only seven of them.

Officials of the Lamport and Holt line said that, under the usage of the sea, the ship's officers would see that the women and children were saved first, and that all the passengers would be placed in lifeboats before any seamen left.

HERO RADIO MAN STEPS INTO NICHE WITH JACK BINNS

JACK BINNS moved over in his radio niche of fame today and made room for a younger colleague, a hero who proved his mettle in the Vestris sinking off the Virginia Capes.

M. J. ("Sparks") O'Loughlin, radio operator of the ill-fated Vestris, stuck with his key for three hours while the liner was being steadily sucked down into the surge of the sea.

Just as the heroic Jack Binns did back in January, 1909, when the Republic was going down off Nantucket in the bite of a winter night, "Sparks" O'Loughlin, almost on his back against the side of his radio shack because of the Vestris' listing, hammered out calm instructions directing rescuing vessels to the scene.

A span of nearly twenty years alters not the cut of a hero's mantle.

It was at 10:29 a. m. when "Sparks" slid into his seat and hammered out his first SOS on the Vestris.

It was 1:25 p. m., when braced against the side of the shack, he sent the last message, meticulous even to the courtesy of notifying his listeners that he was "S K" (signing off).

"We are taking to the lifeboats. S K," this message read; but "Sparks" did not send the information that he and the captain were the last two men on board the sinking ship.

IS WRECKED ON FIRST SEA TRIP

New York, Nov. 13 (INS)—Among those waiting in the Lamport & Holt offices for news of survivors from the liner Vestris is Mrs. Roy Royal, of New York wife of a member of the ship's orchestra.

"This was Roy's first trip at sea. He had just finished a vaudeville engagement and signed up with the Vestris orchestra," Mrs. Royal said.

The Royals have been married three years.

William W. Davies of N. Y. Taken on American Shipper

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—William W. Davies, New York correspondent of La Nacion of Buenos Aires, who was a passenger aboard the vessel, was taken aboard the "merican Shipper, said a radio message received today.

HOW PASSENGERS LEFT THE VESTRIS

This actual photo of a steamship sinking in midocean illustrates how the disabled Lamport and Holt liner was abandoned in a sinking condition by her passengers and crew. The Vestris carried 16 lifeboats, a motorboat and numerous rafts.

ANOTHER LAMPORT AND HOLT LINER ANSWERS CALL FOR AID

The Voltaire was one of the first ships to join the fleet that rushed to the aid of the Vestris' passengers and crew.

EMPTY BOAT IS PICKED UP

Bermuda, Nov. 13 (AP)—One of the lifeboats of the stricken liner Vestris was picked up empty by the liner Berlin this morning.

There was no way to tell whether it had been occupied and the passengers were lost or rescued, or whether the boat had washed away from the Vestris unoccupied.

Eversley Was Returning to Barbados After Voting

New York, Nov. 13 (INS)—William Eversley, a passenger on the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris, which foundered off Virginia Shoals, was returning to Barbados after casting his vote for Governor Smith, Eversley, whose home is in Brooklyn here, had been in Barbados to claim the estate of his father, who died there six months ago, and returned to the United States for the election.

rescue ships and relayed to the Navy Department.

New York, Nov. 13 (INS)—The rescue ship Myriam bound for New York with survivors of the sunken vessel Vestris reported in a radio message today that she had 53 rescued persons aboard.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—The coast guard reports that a partly indistinct message had been picked up supposedly from a foreign vessel reporting the finding of lifeboat No. 15. The message said some wreckage also had been found.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Capt. D. A. Maloney, operating manager of the American Merchants Line, owners of the American Shipper, said it would take the ship approximately 16 hours to make New York from the scene of her rescue of the three lifeboats and a liferaft of the Vestris.

S. S. Berlin, Nov. 13 (by wireless to the Associated Press)—After rescuing 22 persons out of boat Number 15 we picked up Karl Schmidt who had been drifting in a lifeboat for 22 hours. All safe and sound. Nobody injured. Lots of small wreckage drifting. Very strong northerly winds. Squally and high seas. Arrive Ambrose Wednesday four a. m., approximate. Complete passenger list already given locks. Robert Cheafe, seaman. (Signed) Von Thalen, master.

SHIP OFFICES ARE CROWDED

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Offices of the Lamport & Holt line at 24 Broadway were filled today with friends and relatives of Vestris passengers, all eager to learn the latest facts as to the fate of the liner on the rough Atlantic.

The booking office was busy all night answering personal inquiries and long-distance telephone calls from many cities.

In the lines of anxious seekers for the latest word were numerous negroes whose shipmen and acquaintances were part of the Vestris' passenger list for Barbados.

Nahant in Touch With Rescue Ships Throughout Night

All through the night, the radio operator at the Nahant Coast Guard station was in touch with the steamships American Shipper and Myriam, receiving dispatches in connection with the sea disaster.

Just after dawn the operator lost both steamers, but whether because they stopped sending or because reception thinned out, he could not discover.

RESCUE 6 FROM TRAWLER

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 13—After a thrilling battle with heavy surf, Coast Guardsmen today succeeded in taking six men off the steam trawler Ruth Mildred of Gloucester, Mass., which had been driven ashore six miles south of Virginia beach.

The vessel, whose owner and master is Capt. Nils Soderberg of Brooklyn, N. Y., was reported leaking badly and it was feared it would be a total loss. The rescued men were cared for at the Middle Island Coast Guard station.

The Ruth Mildred, although rigged and recently overhauled in Gloucester, her "home port," carried a crew from Brooklyn, N. Y. She was built in Essex in 1922.

10 Pouches of U. S. Diplomatic Mail on Sunken Ship

Washington, Nov. 13 (INS)—Ten pouches of diplomatic mail, consigned to American diplomatic officers in South American countries by the State Department, were aboard the steamer Vestris and presumably have been lost, it was announced here today.

State Department officials said the papers could be duplicated.

Radio Messages in Sea Tragedy Are Confusing

New York, Nov. 13 (INS)—Confusion that bordered at times upon absolute mystery hampered efforts today to obtain the detailed narrative of the loss of the liner Vestris and the exact number of rescued and possible missing.

Fragmentary radiograms piled up in the shore stations in a steady stream, but for the most part they were so contradictory as to make it impossible to give official figures on the rescued persons and the missing. There was the utmost confusion as to how many life boats had been launched.

The German liner Berlin, which first reported 21 rescued, later sent additional wireless information that she had really picked up 23 persons.

For hours confusing reports were received as to whether Capt. William J. Carey of the Vestris had really been picked up by the French tanker Myriam or was among the missing.

Los Angeles to Be Ready to Hunt Survivors

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles today was ordered to stand by in readiness to leave to assist in the search for the Vestris survivors.

She is scheduled to be ready to take the air about 6 o'clock.

FIND LIFEBOAT AFLOAT, EMPTY

Bermuda, Nov. 13 (AP)—One of the lifeboats of the stricken liner Vestris was picked up empty by the liner Berlin this morning.

There was no way to tell whether it had been occupied and the passengers were lost or rescued, or whether the boat had washed away from the Vestris unoccupied.

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—The battleship Wyoming reported to the Navy Department today that she had picked up eight survivors of the disabled steamer Vestris.

Liverpool, Eng., Nov. 13 (AP)—Four of the crew and the assistant purser, C. R. Jones, of the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris, who would have been originally aboard their vessel, arrived at Liverpool today on the steamer Celtic, the purser being on vacation and the others on sick leave.

HEARST PARTY REPORTS GOOD WEATHER

By CAPT. SIR GEORGE HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition

Copyright, 1928, by the New York American, Inc., and by Universal Service. Reproduction in whole or in part expressly forbidden.

Deception Island, Antarctica, Nov. 13—(By Radio From the Whaler Hektorio via Port Stanley, Falkland Islands)—We are about ready to make the first airplane flight ever made by anyone in Antarctica.

Our American Lougheed-Vega monoplane Los Angeles, in which Lieut. Eielson and I flew over the North Pole, made further history today when it was the first complete airplane to touch Antarctic soil.

We are now prepared to withstand the customary November storms. So far we have had fine weather. This is a "break" which has enabled everyone from captain to messboy and members of the expedition to keep busy.

Every waking hour we have been industriously on the job. We have been locating the troubles with our radio aerials and overcoming many faults. Today we heard San Francisco for the first time. We expect soon to arrange a schedule for direct communications.

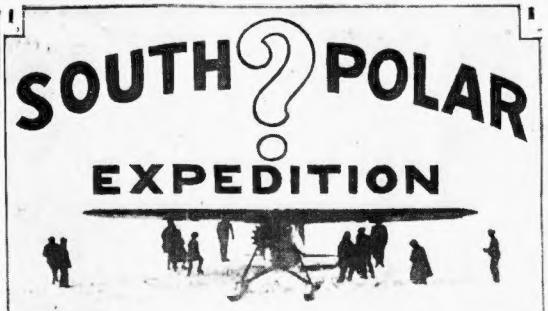
We spent a day seeking landing fields and beaches suitable for launching a seaplane. Eventually we discovered a convenient place near the whaling station. The machine can be dragged from the water there and can have its pontoons exchanged for wheels. The plane will then be taxied about 300 yards to some snow-covered slopes where skis will replace the wheels.

Far down the harbor the flat ice is still unbroken. It will serve, no one knows how long, for takeoffs with big loads. Today our reserve airplane will follow the Los Angeles ashore. Within a few days we will be able to make our first trial flight.

The Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic exploring expedition set out from New York last September. The four members sailed to Montevideo, Uruguay, where they unloaded their airplanes and gear. In a few days they set out for the "bottom of the world" in the whaler Hektorio.

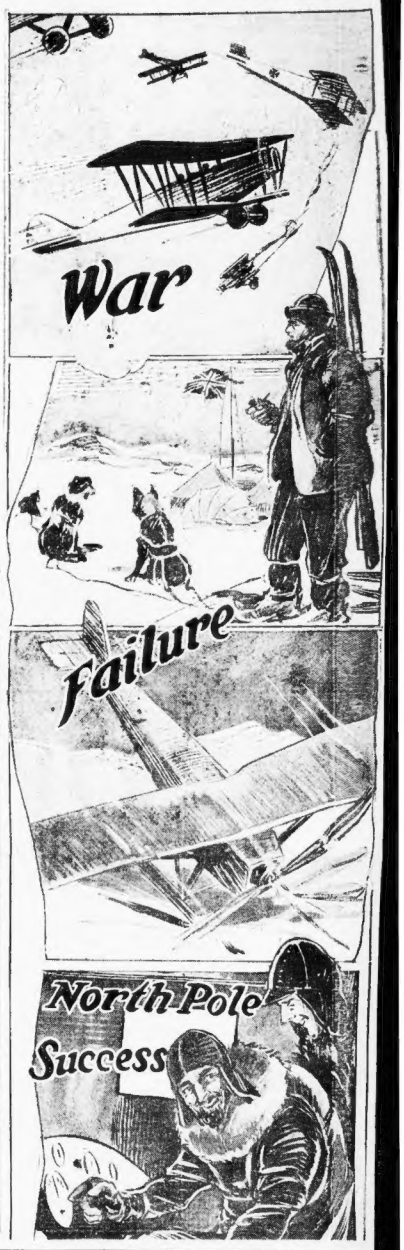
They proceeded steadily southward, passing Falkland Islands. Flying from Deception Island they expect to establish a base some 60 miles south of there. Then they will make a succession of flights into the heart of Antarctica in the hope of compelling nature to yield her last secrets.

SOUTH ? POLAR EXPEDITION



HOW WILKINS-HEARST ANTARCTIC PLANE WILL HOP OFF

A few outstanding events in the colorful life of Capt. Sir George H. Wilkins, head of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic expedition, are depicted here. His flight over the North Pole climaxed several unsuccessful previous polar attempts. He failed to reach the Pole with Stefansson in 1913, and then came the World War, in which he served in the Australian air service. In 1920 and 1921 he was a member of the British Imperial expedition in the Antarctic, and in 1922 was in the little band that followed Shackleton and Rowette on their ill-fated South Pole expedition. Ill luck attended Wilkins' first attempts to fly over the North Pole. One plane was buried and two others were wrecked in Alaska. He secured another plane and with Lieut. Eielson made a successful flight across the top of the world.



FRIED EGGS OUR NATIONAL DISH, SAYS EARHART

Amelia Earhart today severed another of her Boston connections when she resigned as president of the Boston chapter of the National Aeronautical Association at a luncheon meeting of that body at the Chamber of Commerce.

Her action, she explained, was taken in the interests of the organization, which she believes needs every officer doing active work for aviation in Boston, and which, she said, was hampered by having a president whose new duties keep her traveling everywhere except to the Hub often.

Miss Earhart, now aviation editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine, said that she had made a study of foods on her recent Western flight and discovered fried eggs are the national dish.

She told the chapter that she meant to keep on flying her plane until either it or she drops to pieces.

HUB PASSENGER INJURED ON STORM-TOSSED LINER

Alan F. MacIntyre of Boston was severely injured and a score of other passengers and members of the crew were slightly hurt in a stormy crossing of the Atlantic by the steamship Laurentic, according to dispatches from Cherbourg today.

Several of the passengers were injured when thrown against walls by huge waves breaking over the decks. The Mauretania was several hours late in reaching Cherbourg from Plymouth, England, her first stop.

8 AUTOISTS FINED $920 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Springfield, Nov. 13 (AP)—Eight drivers, fined a total of $920 on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor, constituted new day's record for district court here today.

HOOVER PLANS TO EXTEND HIS GOOD WILL TRIP

Stanford University, California, Nov. 13 (AP)—Herbert Hoover may find it necessary to extend the itinerary of his good-will tour of Latin-America considerably beyond the scope contemplated.

Urgent invitations for the President-elect to visit countries in both South and Central America which were excluded from the original schedule are now coming and his 40-day itinerary may be extended to two months or slightly longer.

Mexico, Columbia and Ecuador are among the Southern republics which have asked that the President-elect include them in his tour, their invitations being joined with that from Bolivia, the visit to which would involve a considerable trip in addition to that which may be made by mid-road with incision in leaving from Valparaiso to Buenos Aires.

Under the original plans, the battleship Maryland, bearing Mr. Hoover and his party, would have touched first at Bolivia, Panama Canal Zone, and then moved past Columbia and Ecuador to Peru, with Chile the next country to be visited.

Mexico also desires to have the party visit that country on the return trip to the United States.

The original plan was to proceed from Rio de Janeiro to Havana and then to Florida. These invitations are being given consideration.

Augustin M. Beauregard.

It is settled, however, that the party will leave San Pedro, Cal., next Monday, and it may be that a stop will be made at a Mexican port on the west coast enroute to Bolivia.

Besides being attended by Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher as the official representative of the State Department, the President-elect is to have a naval aide, probably Comdr. Augustin M. Beauregard.

While the battleship which is to be Mr. Hoover's part from Buenos Aires to the United States has not been selected, it is likely that this duty will fall to the Texas, which conveyed President Coolidge from key West to Havana last winter.

RESCUE SHIPS CARRYING VESTRIS SURVIVORS TO TWO U. S. PORTS

THEY WILL BE LANDED AT NEW YORK AND NORFOLK, VA.

Names of those taken aboard the Myrian and Berlin were sent through the air to the owners of the Vestris in New York, and these detailed lists added a round dozen to the list of rescued as previously figured.

The captain of the Vestris, William J. Carey, is among those on the Myriam.

Radio reports being received all along the Atlantic seaboard indicate that there were not enough lifeboats for all aboard the Vestris, due to the fact that the vessel was listing badly to starboard and the boats on one side could not be lowered.

This, together with a report that two lifeboats were smashed in launching, probably accounts for the makeshift raft found by the battleship Wyoming.

DIED OF EXPOSURE.

The dead man aboard this raft had died of exposure. His identity was not made known in radio dispatches.

Naval officers and officials of the Coast Guard, watching developments beside radio sets at Washington, Norfolk and other points, readily admitted that high loss of life was indicated at this time.

There were 128 passengers and 219 in the crew aboard the Vestris, a British vessel of the Lamport & Holt line, bound from New York to Barbadoes and South American ports, when she met disaster.

The survivors trod the decks of rescue ships only after an afternoon, a night and part of a morning of terror and fading hope. They had cast off from the doomed ship at noon yesterday.

Sixteen rescue vessels had searched all night for a trace of these life boats but it was only at daybreak today that the first was found. Discovery of the others, scattered as they were over the crest of the sea, followed rapidly.

Then came conflicting reports of the number of lifeboats and rafts missing. Officials of the line that owns the Vestris declared that there were no rafts carried on the liner.

The Wyoming's dispatch made it clear that it was a makeshift raft—just wreckage lashed together by capable seamen—which bore some of the survivors.

How many may have been washed to their deaths from this or other such improvised crafts may never be determined.

Many women were among those forced to cling to wreckage in attempts to save themselves, according to a wireless message received by the Coast Guard base at Norfolk. The source of this message was not ascertained.

The Los Angeles cannot leave for the scene sooner than 6 o'clock, tonight, because it has been undergoing repairs.

The fact that Capt. William J. Carey of the Vestris is aboard the Myriam is taken to indicate that all possible left the liner in boats, for he would be the last to abandon ship, but the boats may have been overturned or sheared after taking to the sea.

CONTINUES SEARCH

The American Shipper, having picked up 128, radioed that it would not give up the search until dark.

Four Coast Guard destroyers and three cutters are under orders to remain at the scene until all hope is gone.

Survivors aboard the Myriam, which is an oil tanker, will be transferred, it is understood, to the Berlin and taken to New York. Those on the Wyoming are expected to be landed at Norfolk, Va.

The chance of finding the missing lifeboat is considered slim by Admiral Hugh A. Wiley, commander of the United States fleet, who is constantly in touch with the battleship Wyoming.

The sight of the other lifeboats came only after they had drifted all night with the rescue ships combing the heavy sea unsuccessfully.

The cause of the sinking of the Vestris has not been determined. The liner encountered stiff headwinds after leaving New York for Barbadoes and South American ports last Saturday afternoon and on Sunday was forced to heave to.

RAN INTO FULL GALE.

The vessel had apparently run directly into the vortex of a storm. The wind was blowing a full gale.

When she hove to the Vestris took a severe hammering and possibly her plates were sprung.

On the other hand, that theory was doubted somewhat when reports were received from coast guardsmen that a broken sea valve might have been the direct cause of the disaster.

Late Sunday the liner began to list, although her cargo was not of the type that would shift. Water must have been entering her starboard side, in the opinion of veteran seamen.

The first distress signals, which did not ask aid but only requested other vessels to listen in for further reports, were sent out after daylight Monday morning. Within a few hours SOS flashes were darting through the sky, and shortly after noon came the abandonment of the ship, whose starboard decks were already awash.

FIRST AID FOR SURVIVORS.

Launching of the lifeboats was made exceedingly difficult and dangerous by this listing, which was at an estimated angle of 32 degrees.

Warm clothing and hot drinks were given the survivors as soon as they were taken aboard the ships that affected their rescue.

Many were suffering from the shock of their experiences and all were weak from exposure. They were soaked with rain and the spray of the sea. They were sick from the constant tossing of the boats and dazed from physical hardship and mental anguish.

Doctors aboard the rescue ship took every precaution to prevent pneumonia or death.

The night to which the survivors had been exposed was stormy and the sea ran heavy, but there was no gale.

Crews and passengers on the sailing vessels gave up their berths to the survivors, but there was hardly room to accommodate them on the French tanker Myriam, and it was a case of crowding also on the merchantman, American Shipper.

Out of the maze of coded flashes filling the air the radio operator of the Vestris—O'Loughlin, his first name being as yet unlearned again—has taken a place on the roll of glory, for to his urgent demands that ships "hurry, hurry, hurry," is laid the success that attended rescue efforts.

O'Loughlin, who is 26, with 12 years' experience at sea, patiently worked out the exact position of the Vestris with shore stations and other ships while his vessel was slowly sinking under him.

HOPE OF RESCUE FADED

Hope of finding the lifeboats of the Vestris had been given up by some Navy officials watching developments by radio when, at 3:20 p. m. came word suddenly that the American Shipper had sighted red flares.

Half an hour later this message came through: "Now in scene one lifeboat alongside no one."

This flash also was from the S. S. American Shipper and then the story of rescue picked up radio signals came straight through the air from the vessel itself. A second, the French tanker Myriam.

A message received at 5 p. m. from the Myriam said the tanker had saved the occupants of one lifeboat. A few moments later came word that there were other boats alongside waiting to be picked up.

Then the Myriam wirelessed to other rescue vessels which its lookouts could spot within the circular rim of the horizon:

"Come on. More boats to pick up. Am bound for New York myself. Have rescued boat No. 5."

The American Shipper wrote the next chapter:

"About five miles north of position where found first lifeboat. Approaching four other lifeboats now."

As Admiral Wiley later explained, the heavy seas had prevented the small boats from hugging together. This is the reason the admiral sees but little hope of finding a boat that has drifted far from the others.

The American Shipper reported about 6:15 a. m. to the naval radio station at Norfolk, Va., that all the Vestris' boats, with the exception of one and a raft, had been picked up. Later the Navy Department at Washington was informed that in the launching of the boats from the Vestris——whose starboard deck was already swept by the waves—two boats had been splintered.

Through the long night hours, with the searchlights of a battleship seven Coast Guard vessels and eight other steamers, including an oil tanker, sweeping the surface of the sea, it looked as if no rescues could be made, but officials of the Lamport & Holt line, owners of the sunken Vestris, hoped that the lifeboats had tried to make for shore and would be found after daybreak.

This proved to be the case, but it was a night of terror for the survivors, coming after two days and a night of trepidation as their ship was battered by gales following its departure from New York for South American ports.

No trace of the Vestris itself has been found by any of the ships that dashed to the rescue of her passengers and crew.

Capt. William Carey of the Vestris was making his last voyage on her, it was disclosed today. He had been ordered to a new vessel of the same line, the Voltaire, which on her maiden trip, is now one of the steamers seeking survivors. It was Capt Carey's first disaster in 50 years at sea.

Besides her 129 passengers and 219 in the crew, the Vestris carried a cargo of machinery, silks, cotton cloth, oil and fruit, valued at $1,600,000. The value of the liner was placed at $2,000,000 by her owners.

BELIEVE BRIDE ALSO SAVED; FEAR FOR OTHERS ABOARD

Relatives and friends of Orris S. Stevens, assistant manager of the Buenos Aires branch of the First National Bank of Boston, were overjoyed today to learn he was reported among those rescued from boats of the foundered steamer Vestris.

No mention was made in dispatches, however, of his bride of three months, and much anxiety was felt for her safety. The family of Stevens were inclined to believe she had been rescued with her husband.

Other residents of Greater Boston aboard the Vestris were Lloyd Keiser of Camden st., South End, a waiter on the ship, and Dorothy Thorne, 36, of 1 Jay st., Cambridge, a passenger en route to visit relatives in Barbados.

Local bank officials, when informed of the tragedy, said that Mr. and Mrs. Stevens had sailed for South America from New York on Saturday.

Stevens had been on a three-months' leave of absence which took the form of a wedding trip tour of the continent was made out after a visit to relatives in New York. The couple set sail on their honeymoon journey.

Stevens has been associated with the South American branch of the Boston banking institution since he entered the employ in Buenos Aires in July, 1917.

His mother, Mrs. Ada Stevens, and a sister, Lillian Stevens, also have been living at the home of Mrs. Stevens' parents, 1 Jay st., Somerville to live with a married daughter, Mrs. Honey Chamberlain. He also has two brothers, Charles Stevens of 167 Linden ave., Malden, and Guy Stevens, Boston banker, sister, by family, Mrs. Leonard Baker of Lynn. His father, Charles Stevens, died in 1926.

Thorne was aboard the ship when she sailed saturday, planning to see his grandmother in Barbados, for the very first time in 15 years. He is the father of eight children, all of whom, including his wife, were left behind while she attempted to get news of his daughter. A message that he was safe reached almost at the same time news of the disaster reached the couple's parents.

Keiser, who has been employed on the South End for the past three years, is a native of Lithuania. He recently applied as a waiter on the Boston-Bermuda-Cuba line.

Two Famous Auto Racers and Their Wives on Liner

Los Angeles, Nov. 13 (AP)—Earl Devore and Norman Batten, racers with their wives as passengers aboard the liner Vestris, long have been associated with automobile racing in southern California and were among the leading Americans on the advance guard of a group of fleet racing drivers.

Devore, who lost Indianapolis speedway classic Bettenhausen finish first, arriving on the same day, narrowly missed death when car crashed an oil spot on the racetrack and turned around several times and crashed into a retaining wall.

About a year ago the racers and their wives made their home in Long Beach, leaving for Indianapolis, their home at Altoona, Pa., and later at Dayton.

Lashing Gale Adds to Peril of Shipwreck Victims

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—A strong northeast wind, rain, mist and a heavy sea apparently were the weather condition which surrounded the sinking of the British steamer Vestris and also sent disaster overtake two other vessels.

This was revealed by reports to the coast guard headquarters here and by radio dispatches from ships which rushed to the aid of the Vestris passengers.

Eight lives were lost when Carl C. Harrison, a veteran coast guard lieutenant, and his crew put out beyond Hog Island bar, off the Virginia Capes, and failed to reach the small floating scow which had gone adrift.

CAPTAIN'S WIFE IS OVERJOYED

Liverpool, Eng., Nov. 13 (INS)—Mrs. William J. Carey was overjoyed today when she learned that her husband, captain of the Vestris, had been saved by the French liner Ile de France.

"It is glorious news," she exclaimed. "I was relieved when word came that some were picking up the passengers and seamen from the lifeboats, but I could not cease worrying until I knew my husband had been saved.

"I know my husband is a good man with his ship and would see that everyone on board left before he did. I was just waiting, boiling and praying that everything was all right."

Crowds in Buenos Aires Seek News of Lost Liner

Buenos Aires, Nov. 13 (AP)—All day long crowds besieged newspapers and the offices of the Lamport & Holt line here with inquiries concerning the Vestris disaster while relatives and friends of passengers anxiously awaited news of rescues.

First reports that all were saved eased the tension and there was less suspense in evidence than when the Principessa Mafalda sank, also en route to Buenos Aires. However, anxiety grew during the day with realization that the fate of all the passengers was not definitely known.

CONTINUE HUNT FOR VESTRIS SURVIVORS

There were also 1927 cases of coal aboard.

Several relieves vessels of the Merritt Chapman & Scott Co. of New York are on the way to the scene of the disaster that the Vestris may be found. One of these vessels participated in the attempted salvage of the submarine S-51 which sank off Block Island in 1925 with 34 men.

Admiral Hughes at Washington mailed his work of the rescuers in the face of difficulties encountered during the night.

"It was a very light, successful piece of work," he said. "Some difficulties were encountered in the night rescues.

"It developed the fact that the rescue ships had not been able to reach the scene of the disaster in the dark. And the skilful seamanship to arrive sooner be expressed confidence all the passengers and crew would safely be taken off and landed in port before morning.

The finding of the life raft by the S. S. Wyandotte, the first ship to reach the distress which the Coastguard station picked up. This message was from a British battleship, the American Shipper and said that the raft was between these two vessels.

"Cannot tell yet if anyone is on it," the message said.

In addition to the American Shipper, the Mystery and the Wyandotte, the high seas armadron of mercy included the United States Coast Guard cutter Davis. The Japanese steamship Ohio Maru, the steamer San Juan, the liner Santa Barbara, three U. S. Coast Guard cutters out of Norfolk; the Southern Pacific liner Creole, the Lamport and Holt liner Voltaire, the Standard Oil tank or Yankee Arrow, the Italian liner Giorgio Odaen, the German liner Berlin and the two sea-going wrecking tugs.

It would have been impossible for waterfront cargo steamers to aid the vessel, they said.

Feels Confident Missing Boat Will Be Found

New York, Nov. 13 (INS)—Arthur J. Lewkowicz, who claims to be the inventor of the lifeboat device on the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris, felt confident today that the missing lifeboats of the foundered vessel would be found.

Lewkowicz, who claims his device can be successfully operated in any weather, said that the boats, fitted with his device, the boats were lowered into the water without release and probably none of the boats were upset. He said he invented the device in 1911 and it was in use on many liners.

OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

MILLIONAIRE IN SHIP DISASTER KNOWN IN N. H.

Stanley W. H., Nov. 13—The lifelong ambition of William P. Adams, of Gardner, Ind., retired millionaire steel worker, to visit South America was shattered when the lifeliner Vestris, on which he was a passenger, met with disaster.

This was revealed today by Col. William P. Swart of this city, an intimate friend.

Col. Swart said Adams, in addition to owning a 600-acre corn farm which was conducted by his sons, Robert and John, had huge realty holdings in the heart of Chicago and Detroit.

For several years Adams enjoyed the pastime of globe-trotting. He journeyed aboard the Vestris with Dr. and Mrs. Frank Crane of Lakeville, Conn., on a combined Col. Swart said, and viewed with delight the scenic beauty of the southern coast line. Ill health, in addition to arrive sooner be expressed confidence all the passengers and crew would safely be taken off and landed in port before morning.

Adams intended to spend most of his time comparing mannerisms and customs of the people of South America with those of European countries—an enjoyable pastime he had indulged in during a previous visit to that section.

In addition to his other holdings, Adams maintained a large estate at Mount Dora, Fla., which was considered one of its show-places of that section.

BOSTON BOWS TO MISS ABBY BEVERIDGE—BETTY ALDEN

Mr. and Mrs. George Swift Give Party to Daughter of Late Senator From Indiana

NO LOVELIER DEBUTANTE THAN MISS ABBY BEVERIDGE EVER CAME OUT of the West, or the North, or East, or South, for that matter, to have a Boston presentation. Rumors of her clan, her beauty, her poise, were wafted here long before the pretty lad herself came to prove all rumors, for once, true and more than true. Last evening at the party Mr. and Mrs. George Swift and Miss Ruth Swift gave at the Copley-Plaza for her, she wore bouffant lace and net, a delectable frothy frock just "off white," with pannicred hips and deep fichu, something a French Marquise might have worn to a royal garden party, in another century.

YOUTHFUL GUEST IN WHITE AND YOUTHFUL HOSTESS IN BRILLIANT flame red, the one a lovely golden blonde, the other a stunning raven tressed brunet, were most effective. Add to the receiving line Mrs. George Swift herself, petite, and beautifully gowned in dawn pink velvet, and there's a trio not often equalled. Neutral tinted chrysanthemums clustered beside them and tall pale green ferns, against dark cedar trees, rose behind them. The three gowns, white, palest rose and brilliant flame, shone radiantly against so sheer a background. Miss Swift's crisp taffeta suggested somewhat of Eastern opulence, with its sequined peplum girdle, and its flame red was exactly her color.

DINNER FOR FORTY, USHERS AND GIRL GUESTS, WITH A SPRINKLING OF the paternal and maternal Swift contemporaries, was a pretty rose decorated affair. Then there was dancing until two brawny Scots, all brave in swinging kilts and tartans, appeared to skirl the pipes and call the dance guests to supper. Even thus early in the season it's the clever hostess who rings in an innovation in the debutante party, and the choice young set members invited to meet Miss Beveridge were delighted with the pipes merry skirling, and bright plaids leading the procession supperward.

THE GEORGE SWIFTS' ATTRACTIVE DAUGHTER CAME OUT LAST SEASON, and so this slight seniority pleasantly placed her in the hostess class with her mates. The two girls have been friends for years, ever since their little girl days when both wore sailor suits. Miss Beveridge is daughter to Mrs. Alfred J. Beveridge and the late Senator, and will be in town until early in December. Even that space of time will make a crowded calendar, so many and so frequent are the festivities friends and admirers seek to stage in her honor.

CHIFFONS FOR SIMPLICITY, SEQUINS FOR sophistication. Bright deep blue to enhance a rose leaf cheek. Mrs. George Mayo, mater to Miss Clarissa Mayo, very astutely ventured a bit from traditional rule in choosing a presentation frock. Some mammas with attractive daughters to set a-sailing on social seas consider nothing so harmonious with tea time simplicity as crystal clear white. And the bud, of course, is delightfully Jeune fille in the tintless color. The venturing for Miss Mayo brought perfection itself in an artfully artless frock of royal blue chiffon with a smart little "coat" of silver sequins.

TEA TIME GENTILITIES YESTERDAY AFTERNOON at the Mayo apartment up on Beacon Hill made a pretty picture for Miss Mayo's formal coming out. No. 55, on the rising slope of Boston's famous old thoroughfare, has before it the Common's green acres with lights at dusk to match, twinkle for twinkle, the tea time candles within. Massed blossoms enveloped the receiving line in their fragrance, tribute to the bud. Mrs. Mayo wore a lovely rose beige chiffon confection and the bud's aunt on the paternal side, Mrs. Wilbur Grant, was handsome in gray chiffon with jewels to sparkle against its pastel neutralness.

MRS. PHILIP KLEIN BROWN and Mrs. William F. Mayo, and out where the tea cup crush was thickest, kept an attractive group of pourers moving serenely about their duties. Miss Constance Randloff of Portland, came up to be one of the group. Miss Sally Parker, a post debutante, was in it. Miss Betty Gibbs and Miss Janet Gibbs, Miss Margaret and Miss Elizabeth Ford, Miss Rosamond Gardiner and Miss Elizabeth Cotton Morison graced it, the last two also debutantes themselves, and Miss Morison to be central figure today in a similar scene as her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Morison, observe the social amenities, serve tea and present their daughter to their friends.

THE ELEGANCIES OF A TEA for Miss Mayo being prettily accomplished as her formal coming out, she looks forward to a dance, such as every debutante loves to have given in her honor. Originally planned for Nov. 20 and the Republican Club's panelled ballroom, the evening remains the same as debutante enlargement looks, but the mise en scene will be the Hotel Somerset's Louis XIV room and gold luxuriousness and music weaving merry rhythms from midnight to matutinal home going. William H. Mayo, doting uncle to this favored bud, does the honors at an ushers' dinner, a large affair at the Algonquin Club.

ON MILADY'S DESK IN EVERY Mayfair residence there now reposes a new, small volume of reference. The Boston Social Register for 1928. It is the autocratic publication that takes upon itself the pleasure and authority of defining, within its sable covers, the "Hub" and the "Only" so far as Society of the Capital S variety is concerned. Perhaps it's sombre hue is purposely chosen, a significant emblem to those who've never yet achieved to a line within its closely printed pages; who have not yet successfully stormed the secret portals that lead in a place in America's Almanach de Gotha.

IT REALLY ISN'T EXTREMELY significant, except to those inordinately given to comparisons and statistics, that "so many" have married; "so many" have folded their wings and passed on. Mere figures at best are dry reading. What actually brings a flicker of interest to observant ones is the information conveyed, not so much by inclusions as by omissions—and into each of those so significant things a small volume may be read. All in all the Social Register is quite indispensable—Social Secretaries cry for it, and no patronus list, dance list, wedding list or dinner list can be compiled without it.

MRS. MALCOLM LANG DESIRES greatly to have Miss Amelia Earhart as supper guest after Wednesday evening's lecture in Symphony, but at this moment it's not known whether the Eaglet can poise sufficiently long in her flight to be a figure socially. First and foremost her interest in town is with the evening's lecture, when this slip of a girl appears in austere Symphony in the interests of Denison House.

(Take 2½ minutes to learn these important facts)

"Will it relieve my cough quickly?"	REM will, or you can have your money back. The fact that not one customer in a thousand ever wanted it back tells the story.
"Is it harmless?"	REM is,—there's positively nothing in it to hurt you.
"Is it an experiment?"	REM is no experiment. 43 years of pharmaceutical experience are back of it.
"Does it soothe the irritation and soreness?"	That's one of the most noticable qualities of REM. It clings to the throat, starting relief quickly.—Right away you'll notice a soothing, cooling effect.
"Does it 'cut the phlegm'?"	REM does. It clears the air-passages and thus makes it easier to breathe during the day and sleep soundly at night.
"Does it taste bad?"	Not REM! It's easy to take. Even children seldom have to be coaxed to take it.
"Is it economical?"	REM is. Simple coughs usually yield to a single bottle. Remedies that don't help are expensive at any price.
"Does it claim more than it can do?"	REM is no "cure-all". We frankly tell you it's no good for anything but a cough,—but how remarkably good it is for that!
"Are all cough medicines pretty much alike!"	Indeed they aren't! No other cough medicine on the market has the same formula as REM, and "it's the formula that counts!"

BOBBED HAIRED WOMEN NEEDN'T HAVE GRAY HAIR

Nature Will Keep Hair Youthful Shade Free Of Gray

LIFELESS GRAY HAIR REGAINS OLD BEAUTY

Everybody knows if color glands and hair roots are healthy and active, the hair will continue indefinitely a rich, natural color entirely free of gray or streaked locks.

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: If I can stimulate digestion, liver, heart, etc., with a tonic, why not rub a stimulating tonic into the scalp that will revive those inactive glands so nature in her own natural way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes—surely the hair will then resume its original beautiful shades of youth regardless of user's age or previous condition of their hair.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY

The doctor's search led to endless experiments. He didn't want a dye or tint, and it, of course, must be harmless even if a person used it many years. Under the name, Lea's Hair Tonic anyone may now purchase the tonic he finally perfected. For several years hairdressers, scattered over the country have been using it. Results are so nice and gradual men used it too. It doesn't stain the scalp, and as a test one need only apply it to some small spot a few days to watch results. Shampoo as often as desired.

Most people are first induced to try Lea's for gray hair but it primarily was intended as a tonic to put the scalp, hair roots, pigment glands and hair in a healthy, vigorous condition. Of course with a healthy scalp comes a change in appearance of hair and a restoration of the natural shade of brown, red, black, auburn, or blonde. There are some three thousand shades of color in human hair—no dye expert can paint one's hair as exquisitely as nature. Lea's merely stimulates nature to renewed activity, puts nature back on the job, you might say, and the tint she imparts to your hair, once the scalp, roots and glands become healthy, is natural. What is more beautiful or becoming than nature's own shade of shade to match your eyes, complexion and beauty?

If a reader desires to try Lea's Hair Tonic on guarantee of complete satisfaction they should get a bottle at drug store or pin dollar bill to this advertisement and send to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md., for generous size bottle, full directions.

Experts cannot detect the use of Lea's Hair Tonic.

He pulled the cramped front wheels off the curb, released the emergency brake and pushed the heavy car. It started down hill so fast he could not stop it.

7 U. S. SHIPS SEEK SURVIVORS

Coast Guard destroyers and five cutters, seven vessels in all, are now searching the waters adjacent to the spot where the Vestris went down, some 240 miles off Cape Henry, the Coast Guard announced here at noon today. The search will be kept at the job until all missing imprisoned life rafts are found, on which it is believed is a large number of survivors, or until the fate is definitely determined. Coast Guard officials said they believed all the passengers had been rescued from the life boats.

Radio dispatches from the Coast Guard vessels on the scene said the weather was improving, but there was "a long northeast swell."

WALSH ON STAND IN TRIAL OF STEWART

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—The government reached into the Senate today for testimony in its efforts to prove Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indian, perjured himself during the investigation of the oil scandals.

It placed on the stand as its first major witness Senator Walsh of Montana, who swore the oil man testified before the committee that he knew nothing about bonds of the Continental Trading Company, which figured in the case.

Testimony has shown that a large batch of these bonds found their way to Albert B. Fall, who leased Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair.

Leo A. Rover, district attorney, inquired whether Stewart had been asked about his knowledge of any recipients of the bonds. Walsh added that Stewart had said he had nothing to do with any distribution of the bonds and had not "made a dollar out of them." Upon repetition of Rover's question, Walsh said that Stewart had denied any knowledge of how the bonds were distributed.

Rover sought to bring up Stewart's testimony before the committee in April, when he acknowledged having received $750,000 in bonds from profits made by the Continental Trading Company in an oil deal, which he turned over to a trustee. Hogan objected, and this phase was passed over after a conference at the bench.

MILLER FACES PRISON PROBE INDICTMENT

Theodore F. Miller, former Boston traffic officer and State prison guard, arrested in connection with the shooting at the prison Sunday morning, faces possible indictment as necessary before the fact to commit murder, it was announced today.

In a report to Governor Fuller of the slaying of Turnkey Frederick Pfluger by Convict Charles Tripi, Sanford Bates, commissioner of corrections set forth the possibility concerning Miller.

The former police and prison guard, who resigned his duties at the Charlestown institution last Thursday by request, was arrested on a technical charge of carrying articles from prisoners out of the prison. Arraigned in Charlestown court he pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 for a hearing next Monday.

Referring to this action, Commissioner Bates said that if any evidence is found of complicity on the part of Miller in smuggling the murder gun to Trippi, the ex-guard will be indicted as is necessary before the fact.

GET ROTHSTEIN SLAYER, ORDERS MAYOR WALKER

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Correspondent

New York, Nov. 12—An imminent end to the Arnold Rothstein case is imminent, it was intimated at police headquarters today as the authorities were ordered into action by a flurry of concern over their failure to solve the most sensational local murder mystery since the slaying of Herman Rosenthal in 1912.

Mayor Walker today personally gave the order to police heads to "get the murderer."

William A. Hyman, counsel for executors of Rothstein's will, made the startling prediction today that "a wave of suicides in high places will follow revelations of facts now contained in the gambler's treasure caches."

"Contents of those vaults will be so startling there will be nothing left but suicide for certain persons," he declared.

A man sought since the shooting of Rothstein, the mutually known gambler, was revealed to have telephoned the police that he was "coming in to headquarters."

George McManus and Willie McGee, Broadway gamblers who are wanted for questioning, were also expected as ready to surrender. McManus is supposed to be the last person" to see the slaughter of Rothstein, who was lured to the hotel by a telephone call and there confronted with a demand that he pay a $320,000 poker debt.

SMITH TO GO TO MISSISSIPPI THIS WEEK

New Orleans, Nov. 12 (AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York will reach the gulf coast Friday or Saturday for a vacation at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, midway between Gulfport and Biloxi, Miss.

The Governor is expected to be accompanied by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who is a close friend of the defeated Democratic presidential candidate. The length of the party's stay has not been determined.

The information was learned unofficially in New Orleans, although officials of Edgewater Gulf Hotel declined to confirm it.

It is understood reservations have been made for some time, but the Governor requested that his plans be kept quiet.

Governor Smith, in a nationwide hookup will broadcast "a message to the American people" at 8 o'clock (E. S. T.) tonight from New York.

DEATH THREATS SENT GIRL IN CERO CASE

Threats against the life of Miss Palmonie Boston, 22, of East Fox-boro, were made public today after she testified in Superior Court that Samuel Gulin and Nicholas Cero shot and killed her brother-in-law, Joseph Pantano. And now is still missing.

This information emerged today in shootings who, for five days and hours, have battled stenographic, but in vain, to find the girl whose story blocked Cero yesterday at the conclusion of the trial at State Prison.

Because Miss Boston still was missing, the news investigation of the Fremont murder, an investigation steadily moving toward Gulin, prosecutor believe, was postponed today indefinitely.

Police supervisors have been told to be relieving that the girl was in the hands of one or more persons who feared the outcome of her testimony if it was found. Chief Inspector Conway Bradford, of the state police, was placed in charge of the search for the girl.

Following the testimony Judge Jacob Alt dismissed court officials to remain at their posts. Assistant Attorney William J. Foley's office for further questioning.

Not now represented at the trial of the murder defendants, the Boston girl's testimony was given on behalf of Cero.

It was revealed that Pantano, common enemy, Bradford, of the case, was killed by Gulin and Cero, who acted in self-defense.

MT. ETNA LOSS 18 MILLIONS

Rome, Nov. 12 (AP)—The correspondent in Sicily of the Tribune estimated that the damage from the eruption had exceeded a total of 15,000,000, of which $3,000,000 represented grain lands, orchards and vineyards.

Advices to Sicilian News Agency from Catania stated that the lava flow toward Adrano had ceased, but the mass was still moving slowly, impossible to Messina. The lava was reported to be 30 feet deep, destroyed and ruined the village of Mascali. Trains were halted at Fiumefreddo, the terminus of the Catania-Messina railroad.

The eruption began on Oct. 30. Dust from the mountain fell in Malta, 200 miles away, and ships reported passing through the ashes in the Mediterranean.

Premier Mussolini has sent a telegram of condolence to the stricken area. Catania is the capital of the province of the same name on the east coast of Sicily. Messina is situated on the Strait of Messina, 50 miles to the north.

'DRY' POWER FOR STATE POLICE

Buffalo, Nov. 13 (INS)—In a sweeping decision the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here declared today state police have the right to arrest persons for violation of the national prohibition act.

The decision was made in the case of William G. Marsh of Ft. Plains, N. Y., whose conviction for transportation of liquor was sustained by the court.

Quoting the United States Constitution, which states that all laws of the United States are the supreme law of the land, the court ruled that state troopers may search a chattel or an automobile incident to arrest for state violation.

The court declared that when Governor Alfred E. Smith vetoed the Mullin-Gage enforcement law of New York State he had said it was the duty of all officers to enforce the national prohibition law.

READING BACK IN COURT

Arthur S. Reading, who resigned as attorney-general after a legislative committee convicted him of accepting bribes, made his first appearance today as a practicing attorney since last time in Middlesex Superior Criminal court where he was formerly district attorney. Reading appeared as counsel for Raymond S. Skilton, former hockey player, charged with larceny of $10,000 from the Framingham National Bank.

On his first appearance for arraignment a week ago Skilton was represented by former Atty.-Gen. Herbert Parker, who was one of Reading's prosecutors. Another unusual feature of the case is the fact that Dist. Atty. Robert G. Dushnell, who was formerly first assistant to Dist. Atty. Reading, will prosecute Skilton. The case was continued one week.

SPEED, ACCURACY, INTEREST, NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1928

Eagles' Coaches Have Done Great Job

By BILL GRIMES

A finer tribute could not be paid to the Boston College coaches, Joe McKenney, John McManmon, and Bill Ormsby, than the football played by the Old Gold and Maroon against Fordham.

It was very evident from the early moments of the game that the breaks were going to be an important factor far more than usual. Both teams had been carefully and thoroughly scouted. Every move made by one team was known to the other. Close covering robbed the contest of most of the spectacular feats, which have featured Boston College games this season.

Both teams were guilty of errors, Boston College capitalized on three Fordham miscues, which was enough to win the game.

Although Fordham had a defense for the long Weston to Murphy pass, they failed to carry out their assignments in the first period and the Eagles stepped out in front with a six point lead.

A serious mistake

But the first slip was a minor error compared with Fordham's failure to protect its one-point advantage.

Bill Grimes

Larry Dellaire attempted to throw a pass to his weak side in the second period, when Fordham was leading, 7 to 6. At its best it was a risky play, for he slipped and instead of the ball going to Cullen, it went straight at John Dixon, who, sensing a pass, had dropped back about five yards. Dixon picked the ball out of the air and ran unmolested for a touchdown.

Then a high pass, Tracy's slowness and the fact that he was not back as far as usual opened the way for Charlie Murphy to block a punt and Boston College went over for its third touchdown.

Fordham's most glaring offensive error was in not taking advantage of the unprotected right zone. In Larry Dellaire, Fordham has a wonderfully accurate passer. The visitors were throwing short flat ones. Late in the game, Dellaire started to throw long passes into the open zone, but the receivers were slow getting free and the play failed to function.

FORDHAM FAILED TO GUARD UNPROTECTED ZONE

Capt. McGuirk, Al Weston and John Dixon are the keynotes to Boston College's success. McGuirk is one of the outstanding tackles in the country. Under John McManmon, the B. C. captain has found himself. He stood head and shoulders over every lineman in the game.

Kloppenberg and Wisnelwski, the Fordham left ends, were unable to handle McGuirk, who was into the Fordham backfield time and again before the plays were hardly under way.

McGuirk stopped practically everything that came on his side of the line and on many occasions caught Fordham ball carriers not only behind the line but on the opposite side. McGuirk's beautiful work was an inspiration to his teammates, and the team was steady at all times under his influence.

Weston is the Boston College offense. Although he did not get free against Fordham, nevertheless, he had much to do with victory. Weston was feared by Fordham. And he was a constant threat from the opening kick-off. He was severely pummelled and punished. But he was still travelling at top speed at the end. It was Weston's beautifully executed 25-yard pass to Charley Murphy that paved the way for the opening touchdown.

DIXON INVALUABLE TO EAGLES—IS GREAT KICKER

As a punter, John Dixon is invaluable to Boston College. Although he kicks from about 13 yards behind the line of scrimmage, he gets fine distance, and when called upon can and does place his punts with good success. Dixon appears slow getting away his kicks, but his shifting to his right and the fact that he is a "side wheeler" lessens the chances of having his kicks blocked.

That will be the first time the Bruins will have a chance to work in their new home. No attempt are scheduled between Sunday and Tuesday so that fast ice may be ready for the opener.

The Bruins' public sale for the opening game starts today. There will be about 9000 seats for the public.

The team has a strong veteran nucleus, with eight players seasoned in Boston, and three other new men who have played major hockey.

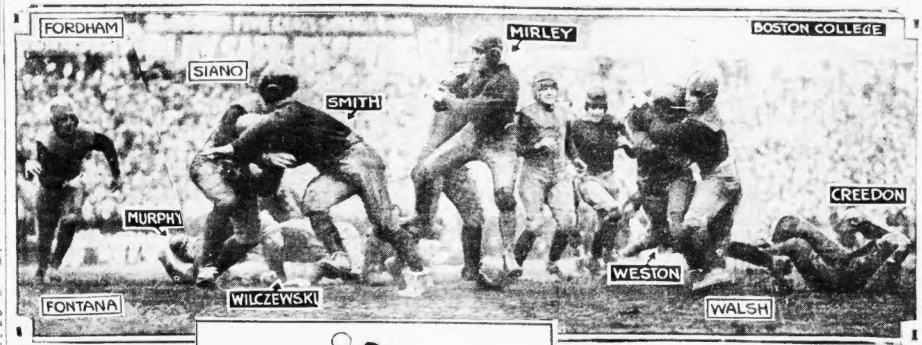
Four newcomers, up for their first try on the big circuit, are Eric Pettinger from Fort William, forward; Ralph Welland from Minneapolis, centre; Cecil Thompson from Minneapolis, wing, and Lloyd Gross, the 19-year-old youngster from Saskatoon.

Boss insists he will not make known his selection for the first game until the team arrives in Pittsburgh. It is almost certain that the "big Six" will start with Galbraith, Oliver and Frederickson in the forward line, Shore and Hitchman on defense and Winkler in goal.

Call Game Off

The National cup tie soccer game between the Woburn Tanners and the Walsh Chevrolets of Fall River was postponed, the Tanners receiving word that their grounds failed to cover the rules which call for enclosed grounds.

HOW THEY BROUGHT THE PIGSKIN FROM LINE TO LINE



B. U. BACKFIELD UNCERTAIN FOR FINAL

Boston University's backfield combination which faces Norwich at Weston Saturday is very uncertain at the present time and will not be definitely selected until game time. This is due to the poor physical condition of several regular and near regular backs whose chances of starting Saturday are problematical.

Several substitute ball carriers who have seen little action this fall will be given a good opportunity to display their wares in the penalizing practice sessions.

Frederickson and Adams shared the fullback berth left open by the injury to Walke on the eve of the Holy Cross game. Both played good games and one of them will get the starting assignment Saturday. Adams has a better than even chance because of his kicking ability. With the exception of Walke he is the best kicker on the squad.

Combs and Haley were injected into the game at Worcester for the first time this year also and seemed to fit into the scheme of things fairly well. Combs is the smallest man on the squad and P. is his size alone that prevents him from getting into the lineup more often.

The Pioneer squad took advantage of the holiday and accepted the invitation of Boston College to attend the B. C.-Fordham game at Fenway Park.

Several members from the first eleven will not take part in today's practice but will take more time to rest up and recover from their injuries.

Glen O'Brien and Cy Perkins will be among the missing for several days and it is doubtful if either than will get into action against the soldiers from Northfield.

One was carried off the field in the Holy Cross encounter as the result of a heavy blow on the head which proved to be a slight concussion.

Hoolstein is limping heavily because of his injured metatarsal and an old ankle injury and he will not go into togs before Wednesday.

EAGLES SCREAMED AT THIS ONE

This is the Boston College off-tackle play, the best ground gainer of the Eagle running attack. With Weston carrying on a direct pass, and Mirley, Smith and Creedon clearing out, the smack opens holes as wide as a barn door now and then. Weston swings wide, then cuts in, and any time there's a slight gap, away he goes. In the pictured play, Creedon, leading the interference, failed to take out Walsh, Fordham right end, and that young man smeared the play. Smith and Mirley have both carried out their assignments perfectly. Weston passed the line half a dozen times, but the Fordham secondaries were always in there to get him. It was apparent that the scouts had done a good job on both teams. The boys always knew what to expect.

BRUINS READY FOR OPENER

A light workout at Providence today is expected to fit the Bruins for their first game of the National Hockey League season in Pittsburgh Thursday. Manager Art Ross and 10 players will leave Boston tomorrow afternoon.

From Pittsburgh the Bruins will jump to Ottawa, play there Saturday, returning for a Monday practice at the Boston Garden.

That will be the first time the Bruins will have a chance to work in their new home. No attempts are scheduled between Sunday and Tuesday so that fast ice may be ready for the opener.

The Bruins' public sale for the opening game starts today. There will be about 9000 seats for the public.

STORM HALTS CORNELL

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 13—Rain and snow halted Cornell's drive for the Dartmouth game.

The squad was given a light workout in passing and signal drill in the basketball cage, the practice fields being too slippery to risk injury to any of the men.

The contest will be the twelfth between the Dartmouth and Cornell eleven, and Cornell will go into it with the chance of evening it up.

In the 12 games since 1916, Dartmouth has won six.

The Green has never beaten Cornell on Schoellkopf Field. Cornell's last victory as in 1923, being shot out in a stirring finish by one point, 24 to 23. Dartmouth won last year at Hanover, 23 to 7.

One Cornell veteran will not see action Saturday. He is Sidney Beck Hallbuck, who is at the Cornell infirmary with a disease that may be diagnosed as typhoid fever. The rest of the squad of regulars will be available.

Ray Schalk to Assist McGraw

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Ray Schalk, one of the greatest catchers the major leagues have ever seen, has signed to assist John J. McGraw in his "master-minding" of the New York Giants next year, Schalk resigned as manager of the Chicago White Sox in July.

He will succeed Roger Bresnahan, another great catcher, who, it was understood asked for his release because he had "something better in view." It was expected Bresnahan would become a minor league club manager.

B. G. RAE TAKES GOLF SWEEPSTAKES PRIZE

R. G. Rae annexed the golf sweepstakes at Braeburn with 71 net, while Rae and George Angus tri umphed in the four ball, best ball, with 69.

The leaders in the sweepstakes were R. G. Rae, 78-71, W. H. Walker, 85-74, F. P. Stratton, 78-78 and T. B. Walsh, 87-78.

Nebraska Team Must Be More Than Powerful

Norman, Okla., Nov. 13 (AP)—Battered and bruised so badly in last week's crushing 6 to 44 defeat by Nebraska's powerful gridiron machine, 23 members of the Oklahoma football squad were unable to report for practice last night.

Only one member of the first or second string teams showed up on the field, causing virtual cancellation of the Monday night's workout.

None of the 23 players was hurt seriously, but Coach Lindsay believed it would take most of them two weeks to "get over their bruises."

Harvard Team Gets Much Needed Rest

By TED LYNCH

Harvard is trying to forget football. The Crimson eleven, which has already faced six football opponents and which will face Holy Cross and Yale within the next fortnight, has returned to the normal social life of a Harvard undergraduate.

Intercollegiate football is forgotten.

For three days the Harvard locker room is a buzzing has been deader than a door-nail. The Stadium has taken on its annual dull wimpertish atmosphere with nary a single varsity player making his appearance within the shades of its vast dimensions.

Coach Horween's 1928 Harvard varsity eleven has forgotten football while the great Crimson football fraternity are worried sick over a pernicious Harvard football situation.

Following the Penn game, Coach Horween ordered a three-day holiday. On each day the varsity has had intelligent use for the activities. Sunday the squad remained in college rooms.

SQUAD AT MYOPIA

Monday they were the guests at the Boston College-Fordham game. This afternoon the entire squad is at the Myopia Hunt Club in Dedham where polo predominates and football is out of order.

All this shifting of sites for the Harvard squad is the result of a psychological stunt pulled by Coach Horween. His Crimson varsity is on the verge of staleness and is sloughing the strain of the many drives which preceded the early season games.

For three weeks the Crimson machine fired away at a high notch before the Army game. Then came the Dartmouth and Penn drives in short order.

The Crimson varsity was cracking under the strain and Horween has prescribed a much needed rest for his eleven. Harvard will only have two real practices before the Holy Cross game, but Horween feels that a complete revival of spirit among his charges is the only remedy which will bring them out of their present trance and make them a tough opponent for Yale two weeks hence.

GET NEEDED REST

Horween has resorted to the Myopia Hunt Club as the site to forget football worries and troubles. He has sent his team there each year. This year the rest is more than needed for Harvard is facing one of the toughest schedules that a Harvard team has been confronted with in many a decade.

The Crimson mentor feels that this three-day rest will be sufficient remedy to place his charges in a fighting mood for the Holy Cross game. He will haul his eleven back to Cambridge late tonight and it is expected that an entirely different Crimson machine will be ready for the hard work which starts tomorrow afternoon at the Stadium.

WOBURN AND MELROSE IN SCORELESS CONTEST

Woburn high and Melrose high battled to a scoreless tie in a Mystic Valley league game at Melrose, last night.

Claude Davidson to Organize New League

President Claude Davidson of the New England League announced today that he had become associated with the organization of the Eastern Massachusetts League of professional baseball clubs and that he has applied to Secretary John Farrell of the national association for protection under the national agreement.

Davidson stated that the new league would work in harmony with the New England League and that both leagues would be run from the same office. Davidson also stated that he had discussed the project with several New England club owners, all of whom had a very definite opinion of the mutual benefits to be derived from this new arrangement.

President Davidson said that he has anticipated no changes in the makeup of the New England League. He denied emphatically that Manchester had withdrawn from the league and said he had every assurance that Salem would again be represented.

Davidson also said that he was not at liberty at the present time to divulge either the names of the cities or those connected with the Eastern Massachusetts League, but that the league was being definitely organized and that he would give out further information after the New England League meeting in Boston November 18.

Rogers to Sign

Chicago, Nov. 13—Rogers Hornsby will sign a Cubs' 1929 contract today.

Sanborn and Dummer in 6-6 Deadlock

Haverhill, Nov. 12—Sanborn Seminary and Dummer Academy fought to a 6 to 6 stalemate here. Dummer scored in the first period.

Smith caught a pass from Temple and dashed 15 yards to score.

Sanborn evened the score in the second period by blocking a punt on the three-yard line.

Captain Deas took the ball over for a touchdown.

Smith starred for Dummer and Deas shone for Sanborn.

GIANTS SIGN SCHALK TO HELP OUT McGRAW

New York, Nov. 13 — The New York Giants announced that Ray Schalk has been signed as assistant to John McGraw.

Schalk was a great catcher while a player for the White Sox.

He caught for the American League club 15 years.

He was promoted to manager in 1926.

McNamara and Debactes Lead in Six-Day Race

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP)—Reggie McNamara and Gerard Debaeles, the Belgian-American commination, had jammed their way into the lead of the six-day international bicycle race at the Coliseum early today.

The pace-setters broke a triple tie for first place during the night, when 48 laps were stolen. At the 31st hour the leaders maintained their standing despite frequent spurts by other teams.

Georgetti and Beckman, who led during the early hours of the race, were in third place, two laps behind the leaders. Disastrous spills prevented Freddie Spencer, former American sprint champion, and Cecil Walker from riding among the vanguard.

Under the strain of continual jamming, the team of Guyot and Raffo was compelled to retire from the race.

Paulino Ban Is Lifted in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Paulino Uzcudun was reinstated and Sid Terris suspended today at the regular meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission which disposed of several other routine matters.

Uzcudun had been in bad grace as a result of his foul of Big Boy Peterson in a recent bout at Ebbets Field, but had been permitted to box Otto Von Porat at the Garden.

Terris drew official action upon his failure or failing to appear before the commission to explain the injury which caused him to cancel his scheduled match against Jackie Pilkington at the St. Nicholas Arena here last night.

Nat Kessler, Chicago Bridgeweight, appeared with a challenge for Sammy Mandell, 135-pound champion. The challenge and the check were placed on file.

George Levine and Harry Wallach were reinstated after serving several weeks on the ineligible list.

Twins Look Alike; Run Alike

Warm medals were awarded for the Armistice Day road race here from Newton to Waltham under the auspices of the Newton post of the American Legion. It was revealed that Newton has high school boy twins who not only look alike but run alike.

The race was won by Augustino Signori in 42 minutes 39 seconds. Walter Hall was awarded a medal as was discovered that his twin brother, Vincent, also 16 years, had won a race over the same course last May in exactly the same time.

Contestants in the Armistice Day race, who were also entered in the race last May held under the auspices of the Newton Chamber of Commerce, thought they were running against the same boy.

B.C. ELEVEN HAS POWER AND PEP

Coaches and Experts Impressed by Fordham Win; Three More Games to Play

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Boston College's undefeated football team is being hailed champion of the East. The Eagles, after smearing Fordham at the Fenway, should ride through without much trouble.

Cadets, Conn. Aggies and Holy Cross still are out in front, but the power the McKenney team showed in the holiday game makes the rest of the schedule look like a parade.

Scores of coaches and experts who visited the Fenway were impressed with the manpower of the B. C. The Eagles dominated in the first three to battle every forward group in the land. Two free ends and a fast shifty backfield, with a real passing game rounded out a team that made the visiting firemen sit up and take notice.

Al Weston will get plenty of All-American mention this fall. He proved once more that he is one of the best offensive backs in the country, a smart, capable quarterback, and a real genius at catching punts and running them back.

Joe McKenney, the baby coach, is getting plenty of praise today. He still has a few of the Cavs' heroes, but the greater part of his team was developed by himself. His players are smart and know their football. Their keenness picked up the touchdowns that meant victory over Fordham, and when they were in front, they knew how to stay that way.

TRIUMPH FOR COACH

It was the greatest triumph of McKenney's life to beat Fordham. He smiled happily after the contest, but there was a tinge of sorrow in Eddie's countenance as he grasped Major Cavanaugh's hand after the game was over and the figures on the score board read, Boston College 19, Opponents 7.

Cav tried every trick he had in his bag to whip Boston College. And he was a tired soldier when the referee shrilled the final play of the game. He slouched his iron derby down over his forehead and trudged after his Maroon clad warriors to the locker room.

Cav had little to say after the fray. He left another chance coming next fall. McKenney, on the other hand, admitted that his team had benefited by the holiday, but also stated that his team didn't play up to usual form.

Boston College took advantage of the breaks, but the referee saw to it that Fordham got plenty of yardage in the penalty line. And it may be Cav's style of play that was accountable for B. C.'s final touchdown, the Eagles really took the game out of the fire.

MURPHY SMOTHERS KICKS

Tracey, Cav's punter, went back 10 yards for every kick and Charley Murphy, the B. C. right end, always had a clear shot at him, due to the Fordham punt formation. Charley is one of the fastest ends playing the game. As it was he blocked two punts and missed four more by the narrowest of margins.

Al Weston and Captain Warren McGuirk played sensational ball for Boston College. Weston took an awful pounding, but he stood up under it like a Trojan. Al was keyed in the final chapter when three Fordham players jumped on him while he was sprawled on the sideline.

It was within the football code but didn't help Fordham's stock with the fans. Weston was stars for a few minutes but came back to lead his team through to the finish.

And Weston did some fine galloping through the Fordham line, the strongest wall that Boston College has run into. When you consider the job Weston did when Fordham was instructed to stop him, it seems uncanny.

McGUIRK IS GREAT

Warren McGuirk kept Fordham's backs bottled up all game. He not only stopped them through his tackle, but showed terrific speed in his wide sweeps around the end after chasing the Fordham plays around the other side of the line. McGuirk spilled more than one Fordham interference with his powerful arms on more than one occasion.

Weston put over the winning touchdown by a smart piece of work. Herman blocked a punt for the first Eagle score; Murphy blocked a punt near the end of the second period and made a fly catch of the pass that enabled B. C. to draw first blood; Sheehan, Wilczewski and Dellaire made some beautiful splitting tackles, although buried in the middle of the line battle; and Austin Bosonac, a sub guard, fell on the ball behind the Maroon goal line for the third and final B. C. score.

The whole B. C. team showed well throughout the game. Every man did his duty and the team deserved to win although they had but a very small edge on their Jesuit rivals from the Bronx.

Charlesworth to Play Center in Princeton Game

YALE IN BAD SHAPE FOR TUSSLE

Johnny Hoben, Veteran Quarterback, Must Stage Comeback

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 13—Yale will face its Princeton crisis Saturday, with the veteran, Chauncey Hubbard, displaced by Ken Dunn at right halfback. With this solitary change, the Elis will meet the Tigers exactly as they went down to defeat before Maryland last Saturday.

Hubbard was slightly injured a week ago, and was definitely outplayed by Dunn last Saturday. Dunn starred as freshman halfback last fall. He prepared for Yale at the Kent School, Conn., and hails from Chestnut Hill, Pa.

He weighs 150 pounds and is six feet, one inch tall.

After keeping Dudley Charlesworth of North Adams on the bench last week, following a decided slump, and trying out Arthur Palmer, and Washburn Wright at snapback, the coaches have reinstated Charlesworth as pivot.

Given a three days rest Johnny Hoben, veteran Bod Grimes, who has been all-year quarterback, will be decidedly improved. This afternoon, scrimmaging begins in preparation for the game Saturday.

HOBEN MUST COME BACK

Unless Hoben has shaken off the ragged fumbling, loose and inaccurate forward passing, and poor selected strategy of calling plays, it is doubtful whether he will run the eleven at Tigertown.

The common belief at his attack of poor playing is that he has been overworked and will rally to last year's form in opening this week's practice. Kary Hubbard, of Groton, would probably be given the field general role at Princeton if he had not muffed a punt last Saturday during the muddle with Maryland.

Princeton in Drive for Yale Conflict

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13—Head Coach Bill Roper appeared on University Field today in person to win the Tiger preparation for the Yale invasion this Saturday. The Princeton mentor had no hankerin' Monday workout of the year, starting off with a half hour of dummy scrimmage.

This hard work began in the drizzle against the second eleven, but Mose was the only Nassau regular who was not on hand for the work. His place at guard was taken over by Rod Grimes, who bids more, who has now followed Moore over from tackle to guard.

Fitzpatrick, the veteranized Tiger trainer, stated that Moore will be in uniform in a day or two.

The first team ran through their whole stock of plays in the dummy scrimmage against the scrubs. This was followed by a variety of attack in their 25 to 12 victory over Washington and Lee which the coaches are trying to perfect in time for the Elis.

Jack Norman was calling signals, with Trix Bennet and Ed Witmer as halfbacks, and Mike Miles returned to the fullback post. The line had Captain Chuck Howe at center, Green and Mestres as guards, Watts and Hatfield, tackles and Lange and Stinson, as the wingmen.

A second backfield of Dave Lowry as quarter and including Redmond, Fanebaum, and Levick later ran through plays. A long punting drill, under the coaches' eyes, followed. Bill Scarlett, Bennet and Lowry boys.

Graham Jones also appeared for the first time since before the Cornell game, but was let off with just enough exercise to limber him up after his long layoff. Jones in the early season games had won a place on the first backfield, and is going to get into the Yale game.

Rockne Clan Plays Carnegie Tech

By BILL GRIMES

With few of the more important elevens remaining in the undefeated class, the season is swinging into the home stretch with the Yale-Princeton, Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech and Iowa-Wisconsin tussles the big attractions of the week.

Princeton and Yale will fight it out in the Palmer Stadium, and this contest promises to be one of the fiercest ever staged between the Tiger and the Bulldog.

Yale is fighting mad over its unexpected defeat by Maryland, during which game the Blue was far below standard, due to over-confidence. Princeton has a veteran team, but one which has been stood off by Vanderbilt and Ohio State. The Yale-Princeton fracas is an even bet.

N. D. VS. CARNEGIE TECH

The undefeated Carnegie Tech aggregation will be at South Bend on Saturday, as the guests of Knute Rockne and his Notre Dame Irish.

In spite of the fact that Carnegie Tech has run up a string of six consecutive victories, including among their victims, such powerful teams as Georgetown, Washington & Jefferson and Pittsburgh, Notre Dame will be in Cleo with an extra amount of confidence acquired by its victory over West Point.

With three Western conference victories to its credit, Iowa, the only undefeated and untied big ten championship contender, will meet the University of Wisconsin on their home grounds and a win will just about decide the conference title.

Having suffered its second defeat of the season last Saturday, Harvard will now point for Yale and few of the first string players will be used against Holy Cross. Many of the Crimson varsity will be down in Princeton next Saturday getting their first look at Yale.

CORNELL FAVORITE

Due to the wretched showing Dartmouth made against Brown, Cornell is the favorite for the annual Red and Green battle, which will be decided at Ithaca, while Pennsylvania will experience little trouble disposing of Columbia.

Williams hopes to annex the "Little Three" championship or turning in a win over Amherst and B. U. plans on getting back into its winning stride at the expense of Coach Dewey Graham's Norwich Cadets, while Boston College will run in Buffalo battling Canisius, which team is coached by the former B. C. star, Luke Urban.

Two Mid-Western teams, Missouri and Detroit, will be in action in New York this week against New York University and Fordham and the West Virginia Mountaineers will appear in Washington against Georgetown.

Now that Brown has swung into its stride it will prove far too powerful for the University of New Hampshire. Tufts is favored to win over Mass. Aggies.

BRIGNOLIA OUT TO PIN K. O. ON BRITTON

"I'll knock Jack Britton out Wednesday night," said confident young Larry Brignolia as he finished his heavy training in Toland's gymnasium.

The young Cambridge welterweight is to box Britton, twice welterweight champion of the world, in Mechanics building, as the feature bout of the opening show of the Quincy A. A. and because of his great show of confidence and impressive display of fighting ability, his words carry some weight.

"Mello is trying to duck behind Britton," continued Brignolia, "I come back from Pennsylvania to box Mello. They told me to beat Charlie Donovan first. I beat Charlie, won 10 out of 10 rounds and eased up on him because I didn't want to knock him.

"Would Mello meet me then? No, he'd rather pick on George Manolian. They said I'd have to fight Britton. It's all right with me, because I can knock him out and will knock him out. Then I'm going to fight Mello and knock him out, too."

The preliminary card will consist of a 10-round semifinal and four six-rounders. In the 10-rounder, Jackie Donohue, the Roxbury featherweight, who always puts up a dashing battle, will meet Terry Parker of the North End, while in the six-rounders George Carney of the North End will be paired with Pat Grant of South Boston, Tommy Daley of Lynn with George Jenson, former Charlestown amateur star, Benny Zabull, Milwaukee heavyweight, with Joe Cabana of Cape Cod.

OFF TO THE RIGHT START

The pendulum of popularity is swinging toward cigars—particularly the Robt Burns Panatela. In the month of September alone over five millions were sold. When you join the ranks of the cigar smokers—get off to the right start with Robt Burns Panatela. You'll find a new smoking pleasure in its cool, mild fragrant filler of pedigreed Cuban tobacco. For real smoking satisfaction—try a Robt Burns Panatela.

"WHAT is this boxing game coming to anyway?" demanded Mr. Boston as he sent in a hurry call for his family tuxedo today.

"I'm only a working man and cannot be expected to answer your questions," replied Myles McSweeney.

"May I ask if you are going to wear a tuxedo at Eddie Mack's dinner at the Copley-Plaza?" pressed Mr. Boston.

"I have already said I'm only a working man," insisted McSweeney with his best Boston College accent. "I won't get through editing copy until after 6 o'clock. Then if I'm not too weary I may be able to summon enough strength to hail a taxi to take me up to Eddie Mack's affair."

Mr. Boston beamed happily.

"That solves my problem," he chirped. "I wouldn't want you to be the only one at the party without a tuxedo and so I'll insist I'm also a working man."

"I don't see how you rate that working man stuff, hopping all over the country attending big sporting events. Why, I know some birds who would pay money to have your job just so they could lean against the cops at big fights."

"I say I'm a working man as far as tonight's party goes anyway," went on Mr. Boston. "This boxing racket is getting to be a ritzy affair. Before long one will require social standing to manage a preliminary fighter.

"I CAN remember when fight promoters and managers held their parties in the back rooms of hit and run places. All they asked was for the cops to pass them by.

"Messrs. Goodwin, Carroll and Lumiansky were the first to give Boston a touch of ritzy boxing. Every time this trio arranged a boxing match they tossed a large party with a fitting setting. Then along came Gene Tunney and Polly Lauder and put the boxing game in the social register.

"The boys will turn out in force to do honor to Sergt. Eddie Mack. If there is one bird who is entitled to a dinner, it is the sergeant. Eddie probably holds the local record for picking up dinner checks and paying them off at the cashier's desk. It is fitting that the gang should purchase at least one dinner for Eddie.

"MACK is already entrenched in his new job as matchmaker at the Boston Garden. He has Dick Finnegan and Andre Routis opening the Garden on Saturday night.

"The boys of the Crosscup-Pishon Post will furnish the hurrah and pep necessary to put the opening show over 100 per cent. I have seen them promote successful shows when they lacked a fitting boxing attraction. With a couple of birds like Finnegan and Routis topping their bill, they should play to capacity.

JUMBOS WORK FOR BIG WAR THIS WEEK

The Jumbos will begin their final week of preparation for the objective game with M. A. C. when they scrimmage today at the Oval. The session will be a fairly light one and it is expected that Fish Ellis will be able to take part, for the first time in more than a week, in the scrimmage workout.

The entire team, with the exception of Gene Tobey and Harry Arlanson, will be available for the struggle with the Farmers if nothing in the way of injuries occurs during the week. Arlanson may be able to get into the game for a short time, but Gene is out for the season as is Fred Kennedy.

The reserve line showed up so well in the Middlebury game that there may be some changes in the first string lineup. Earl Littleton, sophomore tackle, was particularly impressive.

He broke up many of the Black Panther plays before they got started and opened huge holes in their line for his own backs. Gibbons, another sophomore, who did the kicking in place of the Fish, also turned in a fine game. He outpunted Johnson, the Middlebury quarter, in the first part of the game and played a fine game in the line as well, teaming up with Littleton.

Sonny Austin and Hank Godfrey, the two Tufts ends, were good on the defensive in the selcto but their work on forwards was not on a par with their tackling. Austin in particular broke up many of the Middlebury plays and tackled Guarnaccia for a loss on at least three occasions.

The remarkable work of Hosie Phillips on the offensive made the Tufts stands rejoice. His running was the main feature of the Jumbo attack.

This showing is particularly encouraging in view of the loss of Kennedy. He is still one of the best defensive backs in the country, as he showed by the way that he hit them Saturday.

1500 Names Sent in for New Garden

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

The contest for naming the new arena at the North Station came to a glorious close with a carload of suggestions which are printed today. And it can be said now that Boston does not need eight or nine hundred arenas if all the contestants are to be satisfied.

It needs about 1500.

For that is a conservative estimate of the number of entries. There are more likely to be close to 1000 loyal fans who have an interest in their native village and might also like to have a powwow of their own.

Loving often

but never loved... yet his melodies thrilled the world!

HE WAS UGLY. A little, squat, broad-shouldered man with a big neck and a blunt nose. He stormed his way through a turbulent life from poverty, through luxury and fame, to poverty again. He loved often and passionately, yet he was never loved. Admired, hated, ridiculed, revered, he conquered even deafness to leave the world richer in melody. His name was Ludwig van Beethoven.

On this hundred-and-first anniversary of his death, the moving, thrilling story of his life is told in December Cosmopolitan by the greatest of living biographers—EMIL LUDWIG. The man who told the story of Napoleon and of Bismarck makes the inspiring figure of this great composer a real man, baffled, struggling, heroic. No one should miss this truly great story.

IMAGINE twenty-five shows running on Broadway with every leading actor a star and every show a hit.

Imagine the box-office men gone crazy and presenting you with a front-row seat to all of them for 35 cents!

That's the December Cosmopolitan, with 25 head liners doing their brilliant best for the 1,600,000 men and women who wait for the Cosmopolitan every month, buy it the day it appears on the stands and read it from cover to cover.

Let's call the roll:

MISS EARHART answers your questions about flying—she tells what she thinks about when she is flying.

E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM is here with a story. It's "Gambler's Choice," and a great story.

"Unknown Lands" spins out another chapter in the life of Lucero, the most appealing heroine ever created by BLASCO IBAÑEZ.

Do you know Herbert Hoover's favorite stories? BRUCE BARTON tells them for you.

FANNIE HURST'S—"The 3rd Husband." Some women know how to make men into husbands and prospective husbands.

And a short vivid glimpse of a placid friendship that blew up because of a girl. "Four Dutchmen" by W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM.

Music—and two who loved each other—it's called "A Garret in Paris" and the author is SIR PHILIP GIBBS.

Should there be "Ether for Husbands, Too"? RUBE GOLDBERG is just as side-splitting as you would expect him to be.

If "The Mud-Lark" could win, his beautiful owner would win, too, and a couple of bad actors would lose. But in a PETER B. KYNE story you can't tell what's going to happen until the end.

There's no such thing as "sleeping like a log." GEORGE A. DORSEY gives us a lot of fascinating facts about sleeping.

And in the same issue of Cosmopolitan you'll find Irvin Cobb, Maurine Watkins, Michael Arlen, O. O. McIntyre, John Knittel, Lew Levenson, Forrest Wilson, Rex Beach, John Erskine and others. Good names, aren't they? They're all there in the December Cosmopolitan—and all at their best.

Don't miss it!

She'd loved another MAN

SOMEHOW it seemed the man she was married to wasn't the same as when she'd first loved him. He'd become tired, discouraged, irritable . . . lost the energy and buoyant good spirits that had once made him such fun.

She knew how poisons bottled up in the system ruined dispositions, undermined health. Yet she distrusted the ordinary range of laxatives; slow-acting health foods—harsh cathartics! . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

It's just like a bit of delicious mint chewing gum. You don't swallow it basically, like other laxatives—you chew it!

The chewing releases Feen-a-mint's wonderful cleansing principle so gradually, so naturally that it acts with unbelievable gentleness—yet sweeps out the clogging poisons from your whole system. In 3 to 4 hours (or by morning, if you take it at bedtime) it freshens you from top to toe!

It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't disturb digestion. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's today.

By DR. BRICE BELDEN

T[illegible]

Nevertheless, direct [illegible] can be worked out in any particular case and often, if [illegible] attention, the individual [illegible] how he felt as a child and can quickly link cause and effect.

A study of the histories of persons of criminal tendencies shows how frequently they were lawless as youngsters and how, specifically, they disliked one or both parents and refused to be ruled by them.

It is interesting to note further how society has somehow recognized the continuance, either direct or by substitution, of parent affection and has used terms to designate this symbolic attitude.

For example the term Alma Mater signifies a kindly mother who prepares her sons and daughters for the world just as did their real mothers years before.

The term Mother Church is also employed in a similar sense of guidance and protection and in the Catholic Church the priest is spoken of as Father.

The psychology in connection with these transferences and symbolic [illegible] is penetrating and covers [illegible]

[illegible] to say that the principles involved are extremely important in child training.

We must do what we can to build love, tenderness, respect, loyalty, pride and admiration in our children as regards their attitude toward us.

Continual exhibitions of disobedience and resentfulness should be studied and overcome. For we never can tell how much and in what special way these childhood sentiments may affect the social status and happiness of our boys and girls after they grow up.

"Embarrassing—but women must face this fact"
Says a woman doctor

They are more than likely to offend others at certain times . . . but this new process* of neutralizing odor in sanitary pads ends all such fears.

WOMEN who have had the advantage of medical advice already realize the importance of this latest discovery of Kotex Laboratories. Many others—unconscious offenders—should be told of this danger and how to avert it. There is no doubt that they are at times offensive to others, in the world of business, in society—wherever they meet people. This knowledge, which once brought miserable self-consciousness, is now accepted easily, because the difficulty is entirely overcome. Each Kotex pad is now treated, by patented process,* to banish all odor.

No evidence of sanitary protection

All conspicuous bulkiness has been eliminated, by a new method of rounding and tapering corners of the pad. It fits snugly and securely, providing greater mental as well as physical comfort.

All the former superiorities

When you need greater or less protection, you can so easily add or remove layers of filler. It is, as always, absorbent to the proper degree. The fact that you can so easily dispose of it makes a great difference to women. And a new treatment renders it softer, fluffier than you thought possible.

Won't you try The Improved Kotex—buy a box this very day. It is 45c for a box of twelve, at any drug, dry goods or department store; also through vending cabinets in rest-rooms.

Deodorizes . . . and 4 other important features:

1—Softer gauze ends chafing; pliable filler absorbs as no other substance can,
2—Corners are rounded and tapered, no evidence of sanitary protection under any gown;
3—Deodorizes—safely, thoroughly, by a new and exclusive patented process;
4—Adjust it to your needs; filler may be made thinner, thicker, narrower as required;
and
5—It is easily disposed of; no unpleasant laundry.

*Kotex is the only sanitary pad that deodorizes by patented process. (Patent No. 1,670,587, granted May 22, 1928.)

MEN OF THE HOUR

Captains of Industry Who Do Big Things in a Big Way

Three years ago Kolster Ashagon was considered a worthless rich man's son, content to sit around on fire plugs eating peanuts and throwing the shells into the freshly swept streets. Everyone laughed when he sat down at the mouth. But Kolster was waiting for his opportunity and seized it the moment she came along. They were married and he became general manager of her first husband's wet wash laundry.

IS PROHIBITION TO BLAME FOR BRAWLS LIKE THIS?

(San Bernardino Paper)

There wasn't a dull moment at the teachers' party with which the Misses Lucile Chever and Rosella Hoppe entertained on Wednesday evening.

From the time the school marms and profs entered the door of the cozy home and glimpsed the cards which read "Please Notice! Anyone mentioning anything about school tonight must place a penny in the saucer," they entered into the spirit of fun and a contagion of joy prevailed.

Bridge formed the diversion of the evening and Mrs. Frost held high score. She was awarded a shoe-shining kit as her prize, while Mr. Cooper, who won the booby prize, was presented with a carefully trained bar of soap. No sooner had the merriment over the prizes lessened a little than the refreshments began to "arrive." First the guests were served with gum, then lumbersnakers, followed closely by cookies and pretzels, then licorice cigarettes and all-day suckers.

Our Own Vaudeville

Kitty—Going out tonight, Mabel? Mabel—Yes, I've got a date with a big sofa man from Davenport.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Almost 350,000 Londoners, of whom nearly 280,000 are women, are employed in hotels, restaurants and domestic service.

Scottish country mansions are now a drug on the market. In most cases they can neither be let nor sold and many are being converted into flats and maisonettes.

The scotiest tow in England is Newcastle-on-Tyne.

By law in England beggars must either sing or play a musical instrument if they wish to ask alms from passers-by in any public place.

One pound of tin can be rolled out into 15,000 square inches of tinfoil.

Untidy people are soon cured in Munich. If a policeman sees a pedestrian throw paper or fruitskins on the pavements, he fines him a quarter.

Just the Baer Facts

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

RETURNS coming in from Nova Scotia and Cicero, Ill. indicate that Hoover is still President-elect.

It was the greatest week in the history of the stock market, otherwise known as Wall Street.

The shock exchange is enjoying a spasmodic tremor known as a Hoover market. Last Thursday over 5,000,000 shares of different styles of fancy certificates were bought and sold.

The Hoover market is a result of the present great wave of prosperity that is sweeping over those who guess right.

It is the aftermath of the glorious Republican victory of last Tuesday, when Florida finally shook off the autocratic rule of the Seminole Indians and joined the G. O. P.

It looks as if the country intended to remain prosperous in spite of the efforts of the reformers to save it.

Industrials, rails and by-products all showed immense strength in the soiree of trading which breaks loose every time a nervous broker gets near a loose ticker.

The jump of railroad securities is logical when you figure the grand total of Democrats who will buy one-way tickets from Washington to Kansas City, Denver and points worse.

This exodus of crippled goslings will be augmented by the influx of happy Republicans headed to the Capital City to pick up the scattered threads and link themselves some warm winter sox.

The Democratic party has received some fine election shellackings. But this is the first time they ever got three coats of paint.

The Republicans have now won three straight elections. It is fortunate for the Democrats that the political racket in America is not an elimination contest.

We do not know whether the third victory entitles the Republicans to permanent possession of the trophy. But if the Demmies are smart in 1932 they will allow their dues to lapse and join the winners.

Taking it all in all, we would say that politics isn't a bad game. There was a little mud slung by both sides, but not enough to make a pie.

A man going into public life can expect the life of an oyster. He is sure to get fried, boiled or panned

The healthy reaction in Wall Street indicates that these United States of America will continue to flourish for many centuries with the aid of mustard plasters, hot applications and requests to join the League of Nations.

BACK SEAT DRIVERS

By LUCY LOWELL

THEY were lovely people, my friend assured me with enthusiasm. Two club women whom she had met only once, but proved themselves so congenial that she meant to miss no chance of meeting them again.

And already the chance had presented itself. There was a lecture in a town 30 or so miles away and she was to drive down there, calling for the two on the way. And it was going to be a jolly occasion and she was so happy about it all.

I saw her the day after the lecture and there was a glint in her eyes and a rather grim set to her lips. I hardly dared ask her about her new friends, but it turned out that there was no need; she was all too eager to tell.

"Back seat drivers!" she snapped. "The both of them! Can you imagine it? Such lovely, cultured persons who've never driven a car in their lives telling me—me, mind you! how to drive!" And when I considered the fact that she practically grew up behind a steering wheel, I could not but sympathize with her.

"They began," she went on, "by both settling themselves in the back seat. This was all right, of course; I wanted them to be comfortable, though it did seem one might have sat in front, seeing we were well acquainted with each other, and I was the stranger. At first I tried to talk over my shoulder at them, but I soon saw that they intended to keep the conversation to themselves. So I devoted myself to watching the road and felt exactly like a chauffeur—in my own car.

"But the worst was when one of them decided that they wanted to go a new road, and to be good-natured I left the road. I knew—a good road, by the way—for this new one. And the darn thing turned out to be torn up for miles under construction!

"Well, I stood it for a while. And then I turned around and went back to my own road without saying a word, though they said plenty—in a tart, ladylike way, calling me 'dear' all the while.

"'Back seat drivers!' she raged. 'I never want to see them again!'

And I don't blame her, having met that variety of pest myself.

TARDY STOCK TICKER MORE MENACING

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

As values soar to dizzy heights in some "blue chip" favorites in Wall Street, the fact that the stock ticker is away behind the market grows increasingly menacing. In the event of a serious break in values, it is only too easy to vision what would happen. Attempts to show the stock market and general business as things independent of each other are futile. There is a great deal of interdependence. Indubitably a bad stock market crash would slow up general business. Margin requirements—especially on issues not listed on the New York Stock Exchange itself—should be stiffly raised immediately.

The fact that at one time yesterday the tape was an hour and a half behind actual sales constitutes as clear a warning of impending trouble as was ever noted. Fortunately the remedial measures do not have to await "political" jaunting or juggling. No red tape need be involved. Margin requirements can be marked up without delay.

President James Simpson of Marshall, Field & Co., just back from Europe, says: "The outlook for 1929 is exceedingly bright. Both in Europe and in America prosperity is very much in evidence and we should continue to record our industrial progress to a very marked degree. Marshall, Field & Co. has been doing a very substantial business this year. We are running considerably ahead of the volume recorded in 1927 and expect to show an even further gain in 1929." Marshall, Field owes much of its growth in recent years to the late John Cale Shedd, "merchant prince," who went west from Antrim, N. H.

Two Vermonters are among the list of railroad presidents who express optimism on the outlook for carriers during the next few months. They are Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and Fred W. Sargent, president of Chicago & Northwestern, a cousin of Atty.-Gen. John G. Sargent. President Sargent's father left Plymouth, Vt., in the early 60's.

President Sargent has a summer home in Plymouth, Vt., on the site of the old family homestead. President Sargent says: "We estimate our October surplus after charges at $2,300,000, against $1,700,000 for October, 1927. I estimate net for November and December will run practically the same as for the final two months of 1927. I estimate we will show $6.85 on common stock this year." Mr. Sargent said that he expected nothing special to happen at today's directors' meeting, but a 50-cent extra was declared on the common.

New capital requirements in United States in next four years will probably approximate $50,000,000,000, according to President Wright of Business Economic Digest. "In five years since 1923, we have floated a total of $35,000,000,000 of securities in our financial markets," he said. "This has been made up of $29,000,000,000 of bonds, $3,000,000,000 of preferred stocks and $3,000,000,000 in common issues. Each year has averaged about a billion dollars more of new securities than the year before."

dent, aged twenty-two, played a brilliant game of football for his college, then with his young high school brother, aged sixteen, also a good football player, he borrowed an automobile and visited Chicago's night clubs. They drank bootleg liquor, took to her home some young woman, of whom they knew only that her name was Pauline, and a little later the older boy was shot by ruffians who followed him in a car, and will probably die.

Near that you read of a young laborer conscience - stricken, haunted for two years by the face of a dying man, confessing that he and two others, having quarreled with a fourth while drinking bootleg liquor at Coney Island, agreed to throw the man over the bridge into the river. They threw him over, and when he swam ashore, threw him in again and drowned him.

Not pleasant liquor, that bootleg stuff.

Parents should find some way to persuade promising young boys not to touch it.

One who knows the dead man and his methods says concerning him: He met at a prize fight a certain unfortunate young rich fool, eager to bet on one of the fighters. The actual odds were 2 to 1.

The gambler said to the fool. "Don't bet any such crooked odds. How much do you want to bet. I'll take your money, even, no odds."

The fool bet $500 and won from one whom he described as "one honest gambler." The gambler purposely let him win at half the real odds

Later that "honest gambler" took more than half a million from the rich young fool, whose name is omitted out of sympathy for his relatives. The fool is now in the insane asylum and the "honest gambler" is in his grave, sent there by other gamblers for cheating them.

Safe deposit boxes of the murdered gambler are to be examined in search of stolen bonds and stolen jewelry, believed to have been received by him.

Rise in U. S. Steel Checks Slump in Stock Prices

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—The "bull" market in stocks, which has had pretty clear sailing since the election of Hoover, ran into a storm of selling today. Early gains of $1 to $6 a share were cut down or wiped out, and at least a dozen high-priced specialties broke $4 to $20 a share.

The selling was checked around mid-day when U. S. Steel common was brought forward by operators for the rise and marked up nearly $3.50 a share to a new high record at $168.

Trading failed to maintain the terrific pace set in yesterday's record-breaking market of 5,670,600 shares, but the ticker was again unable to cope with the day's sales, running nearly 40 minutes behind the market by early afternoon.

National Tea broke $20 a share; Radio, $14.25; Wright Aeronautical, $10; Mexican Seaboard and American Express $7, and Vanadium Steel. International Nickel, American Smelting, Adams Express and Allied Chemical sold down $5 to $6 a share below yesterday's final quotations.

Montgomery-Ward fell from an early high of $398.50 to $387; National Bellas Hess from $160 to $154, and Sears Roebuck from $177.75 to $172, but all made partial or better recovery when a brisk demand developed for Steel common.

MARION DAVIES WILL SING IN SOUND FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13—"Kips," England's nickname for George K. Arthur, preceded that young man to America. It was as "Kips" he became known both on the stage and the screen. In America all of his work has been on the screen, but now he is to use his singing voice and his speaking voice in a talkie. "Kips" will have the role of Jadkins, one of the most important characters in Marion Davies' next picture, "Five O'Clock Girl."

Harry Rapf, who will supervise "The Five O'Clock Girl" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has successfully negotiated for all the song hits in the musical comedy. James Gleason will write the dialogue for what will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's first bonafide musical comedy a la talkie.

Miss Davies, meanwhile, has been studying with a view to perfecting her voice. She has both talking and singing to do in "The Five O'Clock Girl," which has a story as well as catchy music and, of course, a peppy chorus. Her leading man will be chosen later.

A TINKLE all the way from New York whispers that Harry Pollard is shortly to leave for the metropolis to arrange for the addition of sound to "Show Boats." The Edna Ferber-Florenz-Ziegfeld play has been in the making for many months and now if dialogue and music are incorporated it will probably be another six months before it is completed.

Pollard goes to New York on business anyway, so he might as well kill two birds with one stone and make his arrangements for sound. It was the original intention to offer "Show Boat" with its popular songs and excellent lines, but Ziegfeld refused on the ground that it would hurt his musical comedy. I believe he is in some sort of a partnership arrangement in the new deal—although this part of the tale is somewhat vague.

PRETTY little Agnes Franet was singled out by Warner Brothers from a musical comedy on Broadway. She came to Hollywood, following her picture in the paper and all sorts of stories, and then, curiously enough, Warners seemed to forget her presence and give their big parts to other players.

She was all ready to go back to New York with her family, calling Hollywood a snare and a delusion when the Fox company made tests of her for Frank Borzage's next picture. George O'Brien will probably play opposite her. I wonder if this means that Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell will not do their picture with Borzage until a later date.

SH—SH—SH! Jetta Goudal is missing. She left Saturday on a mysterious trip that our scouts say will take her from Hollywood for a long time. Even some of us inquisitive people ventured to ask her where she was going and why but she would only say, "I'll tell you later."

Personally, I think she has had an offer from New York to return to the stage and she is accepting it. She was pretty well known on the speaking stage at the time she came into pictures five years ago, and most of our stars are getting into practice for the talkies by going on the stage whenever they have an opportunity.

CARMELITA GERAGHTY, the daughter of Tom, has a new side line which threatens to become more than a pastime. She is designing clothes, and so original are her ideas that Colleen Moore has engaged her to design her costumes for the flapper in "That's a Bad Girl." I don't know whether or not Carmelita will also have a part in the picture, for she insists that designing will only be done between pictures.

Some of her friends, however, believe that she could do very well if she were to take up this work seriously and open a shop in Hollywood. Speaking of Tom, the young father of Carmelita, he reports that he has written eight scenarios and two original stories during the year ending Nov. 1. And, having some time to spare, he has written several sketches for the Writers' Club and made a full page drawing for Life. Aside from all this he hasn't had anything to do.

WRITE the name, Don Terry, down among the names of leading men of tomorrow. Terry is Winifield Sheehan's choice, and seldom do any of these youngsters selected by the head of the Fox Company prove a disappointment. Young Terry has only made one picture of any importance and that is "Me, Gangster." In the opinion of some people he was better than the picture. At any rate, they think well enough of him at the Fox Company to give him the lead opposite Madge Bellamy in "Exiles." William Beaudine will direct.

THE sick ones are getting well in Hollywood. Poor Josephine Lovett Robertson, who was so badly injured when she fell from her horse, has returned home from the hospital. Elise Bartlett Schildkraut who had a dangerous operation, is getting along nicely and is able to see friends. The California flu is on the mend too. Every time anyone gets a cold out here they take it as a personal grievence for no one ever expects to catch cold in such a climate.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Prince Serge Mdivani, husband of Pola Negri, in America on business, dining at the Montmartre. Says Pola will return in a few weeks. Ralph Forbes attending a performance of "On Approval." Bets being paid on the Stanford-California game. Edna Purviance visiting the Chaplin studio and admiring sets in new picture. Ben Lyon treating Matty Kemp to an aeroplane ride. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., lunching with Joan Crawford at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Ruth Chatterton and Robert Ames dining at the Montmartre. Carl Laemmle arriving at Universal studios in a new Rolls-Royce. Corinne Griffith exhibiting bruised hands received while opening six cans of corn in the movies. Gregory La Cava spending several weeks' salary for a diamond brooch for a lady—his wife. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Women's Clubs Back Paris Peace Pact

Springfield, Nov. 13—With an attendance of 1500, the annual fall meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs was held today in the new Masonic Temple.

The chief business of the meeting was the presentation of a resolution advocating federation support of the Paris Peace Pact and recommending memorialization of Congress to the same end.

Mrs. William G. Dwight, president of the Hampden County Women's Club, hostess organization for the convention, opened the session.

Greetings then were extended to the delegates by Mayor Fordis C. Parker and Maj. Fred Hillman, director of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce.

Prof. James T. Shotwell, director of the Carnegie Institute for International Peace, was chief speaker at the afternoon session.

Among prominent women in attendance were Mrs. Arthur D. Potter, General Federation director for Massachusetts; Mrs. Edwin L. Pride of Somerville, State Federation clerk; Mrs. Frederick Prescott of Malden, chairman of meetings; Mrs. Frederick Glazier Smith of Somerville; Mrs. E. Wilson Lincoln, president Brookline Women's Club; Mrs. Boyd F. Bowles, State secretary, of Wollaston; Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, first vice-president State Federation, Belmont; Mrs. Lawrence Putnam, president Peabody Women's Club, and Mrs. Herman Patterson, president West Roxbury Women's Club.

HOSPITALITY DAY

Thursday the M. S. P. C. A. Auxiliary is holding its hospitality day and fair at the society building on Longwood ave. I ran up to ask Mrs. McDonald, auxiliary vice-president, if it is true that her little granddaughter, Sally Scudder's trick pony, is to perform. She said: "Yes, three times. Although Dr. Rowley is opposed to the exploitation of animals, because most of them perform through fear of being beaten, the pony Paula was trained through kindness, she will be worth seeing for she has an amazing repertoire. Looking across the Public Gardens, from the windows of Mrs. McDonald's suite at the Statler, I asked: "What do you get out of all this club work?"

Mrs. McDonald

TIRELESS WORKER

You see I know what a tireless worker she is, always for some humanitarian purpose, on the children's hospital committee, 14 sewing machines going in her Allston home, doing Red Cross work during the war. First president of the M. S. P. C. A. Auxiliary, which position she has held for five years, and this isn't the half of it. "If I put 50 per cent into club work I get 150 per cent return," she replied. "What does Mr. W. J. have to say about so much club activity?" I further inquired. "Oh, he's such a dear! Never a thing, only once in a while to tease me, then I hum 'horses, horses, horses!'"

W. J. you know, has the largest string of amateur trotters in the country. They have won him more than 150 valuable trophies.

CAMPS ON SITE

If they call Mr. McDonald the father of Park sq., then his wife should be called the mother of the Metropolitan Theater, for with the taking up of the first shovelful of earth, she practically camped on its site until its completion. No small amount of credit goes to her in the interior decoration. W. J.'s business associates laughed at him when he conceived the idea of such a gorgeous cinema palace. From a monetary standpoint it has more than paid, but Manager Louis Laidne grieves because people are in too much of a rush to stop and look at the many exquisite objects d'art.

MAN AND WIFE ROLL 300 FEET IN AUTO

Pawlett, Vt., Nov. 13 (AP)—Mr and Mrs A. A. Greenwood of Bennington were instantly killed early today when their automobile left the state highway from Granville, N. Y., to Manchester, Vt., near here, rolled down a 300-foot embankment and crashed into a tree.

The Greenwoods had been to Fairhaven and were returning home when the accident occurred. There is a sharp curve in the highway at the scene of the accident. Daniel Colvin owner of the property on which the accident occurred, was attracted by the lights of the machine which remained burning after the accident. Greenwood was pinned in the wreckage, but his wife was thrown about 60 feet.

HOOVER VICTORY GIVES HOPE TO BRITISH DRYS

London, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Daily Express said today that the victory of Herbert Hoover had served as an incentive to prohibition advocates in England to prepare for an energetic campaign against alcohol in connection with the general election next year.

The hope was not entertained of making England dry at once, but the proposal was to move toward that goal. William E. Pussyfoot Johnson will help in the temperance drive. The hope is entertained of obtaining money in the United States to aid the campaign.

BOLTING SENATORS MAY NOT FEEL PARTY WHIP

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—Signs of retaliation against members of the Senate who bolted party lines in the Hoover-Smith battle are failing to take shape—unlike the situation four years ago when four Republicans were ejected from their party councils for supporting the late Robert M. La Follette.

Each party this year has two of such recalcitrants.

Marie Receives New Cabinet

Bucharest, Rumania, Nov. 13 (AP)—Juliu Maniu, Rumania's newly-installed premier, and his cabinet of peasants were received by Queen Marie today.

BIG STAGE FLOP MAKES A HIT IN BOSTON

By PAUL WHELTON

There must be some divergence between Boston and New York—deny it as you will.

For two years—except during the free New York period of seven months when no admission was charged, "The Ladder" played to practically no audience at all.

But when it opened in Boston, the Boston Opera House was filled with paying guests.

And not one of the audience asked for money back, despite the advertisement freely displayed on the billboards and in newspapers.

The eyes of the show business were turned last night on Boston to see how the Hub would accept the production of Edgar B. Davis, formerly of Brockton but now of Texas, as written by J. Frank Davis, an ex-newspaperman of the Hub.

For more than two years the show has been publicized as "The World's Greatest Flop" but the attendance at the initial Boston showing belied the nomenclature.

Call it a fashionable and curious audience if you will—but the audience was there, packed from orchestra pit to the topmost rafter.

Long before curtain time, to the surprise of the watchers, lines were formed at the box office.

When the curtain rose, the main auditorium, the first balcony and the gallery were filled—the most successful audience the drama has yet enjoyed.

They will take part in the wedding in St. John's Episcopal Church at Pleasantville, N. J., of Miss Estelle Romaine Manville to Count Folke Bernadotte of Wisborg, a nephew of the King of Sweden.

Sunday Behavior

If It Is Everything It Should Be Sunday Baseball Is Here to STAY

A young reader living in the city of Haverhill advises us that certain opponents of Sunday baseball in his community have given notice of an intention to oppose the granting of Sunday afternoon permits in that city by the incoming City Council.

Our young friend wants to know what WE think of THAT, and we have no hesitancy in saying to him that we think it perfectly all right.

Haverhill voted in favor of Sunday games by a majority of proportions. Under the circumstances, we should expect the City Council to accept the new law.

We believe in majority rule, of course, but at the same time we believe in respecting the rights—and not only the rights but the feelings—of the minority.

When the question of accepting the Sunday sport law comes before City Councils in January, the opposition—if any—should receive a polite and attentive hearing.

Those who favored Sunday games in last week's referendum can well afford to be generous. Here in Boston, they were in the majority by 118,584. That there will be Sunday baseball on Braves Field and in Fenway Park next summer can be taken for granted. The latest figures for the State that have come to our attention are "Yes," 577,353; "No," 304,738.

The towns of the Commonwealth have this advantage, in respect to this law as in other matters, that they will decide the Sunday games question by popular vote, in Town Meeting. Residents of the cities, on the other hand, must act through their representatives in Council. If opposition develops, the HONEST representative will want to hear it.

It occurs to us at this time to say a word of WARNING to our friends who have supported Sunday games with such enthusiasm, and especially to our YOUNGER friends.

PLEASE bear in mind that in this Sunday baseball venture we are all of us on trial.

Every one of us should consider himself a member of the Committee on Order and Decorum, beginning with the first day of Sunday ball.

Umpire-baiting, player-baiting, missile-throwing, and foul language must not be tolerated.

Remember that many of the finest men and women in Massachusetts OPPOSED these games. In a vote of all the citizens of the Commonwealth, they have been defeated; but if any over-smart young fellow thinks to rub that defeat in, we must be quick to discourage him. The thing to do is so to conduct these contests as to make our recent opponents ashamed of their opposition.

Always remember, too, that that which has been given can also be taken away. The Boston Evening American, which has championed Sunday afternoon sports since the question was first suggested, has a feeling that the friends of the game realize the situation and will see to it that, except perhaps for the size of the crowds, the Sunday game will attract no more censorious attention than games on any other day.

If, however, the Sunday game SHOULD get out of hand, and if Sunday crowds AS A RULE should so conduct themselves as to justify the expressed fears of the Lord's Day League and its associates, this newspaper feels bound to say that it will fight as vigorously for the REPEAL of the Sunday games law as it has labored for its adoption.

Knowing the game and its supporters, and knowing something of the temper of public gatherings in Massachusetts, we have NO fear that anything like this will come to pass. But we want this WARNING on the record.

OUR Red Cross

The Twelfth Annual Rollcall

One of the most gratifying duties the procession of the months brings to the editorial desk is to call attention to the annual rollcall of the American Red Cross.

The Red Cross is the recognized agent of mercy of the people of the United States.

The head of the organization is the President of the Nation, who has issued an appeal, in which he says:

"We have trusted the Red Cross in war and peace. It has never failed us. It never will so long as it holds your support. As President of the United States and as President of the American Red Cross, I earnestly ask all our citizens to renew their membership in this Legion of Mercy."

The organization knows no frontiers, bows to no prejudices. It is first on the scene wherever disaster brings suffering and distress.

This year's goal is 5,000,000 members. If the canvass by volunteer workers fails to reach you before Thanksgiving Day, you will be glad to know that the address of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter is 45 Newbury Street.

If you are already a member, now is the time to renew your membership.

If you are not a member, now is the time to join.

All that is asked is YOUR NAME AND ONE DOLLAR.

The First Locomotive

Parts of the John Stevens Original to Be Put on Exhibition

The Smithsonian Institution has shipped to the Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken the original boiler and safety-valve of the John Stevens locomotive, the first locomotive successfully operated in America. It is to be exhibited at the inauguration of Doctor Harvey N. Davis as president of the Institute. Colonel John Stevens, who has been called the "Father of American Railroading," first operated the locomotive in 1825 on a circular wooden track, on his estate, at Castle Point, Hoboken. The greater part of this estate is now included in the campus of Stevens Institute.

The national museum has also a model of the original locomotive, the granddaddy of all American-built locomotives.

Colonel Stevens built his locomotive to demonstrate the practicality of a railroad project which he had incorporated two years earlier as the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He also undertook to prove that steam locomotives could be operated on rails over ground with grades as well as on level ground. The success of his experiment forecast the development of railroads in America for freight and passenger transportation by steam power.

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—The profession of hotel hostess is attracting many girl graduates of exclusive schools. It has none of the rough and tumble hurrah of the jazz cafe or night club. The toney hotel has come to realize banishing loneliness among patrons pays.

The tactful hostess who can single out the lonely and make them feel they are something other than a number on the rack is doing something that cannot be valued in dollars. This goodwill feature is not new but in the modern rush was neglected.

Such efforts among people of refinement requires perception and tact. It is accomplished chiefly in those hotels seeking to achieve a "family atmosphere." And among the summer and winter inns around New York. The job pays from $50 to $150 a week and food and lodging.

The hostess in the aristocratic hotel has living quarters of the best. She must entertain now and then with familiar dinner parties away from public dining rooms. Her expense account for such entertaining is practically unlimited.

She must be adept in bringing congenial people together, promote bridge tournaments and chit well. Flowers are supplied with partners in the ballroom dances. In many instances they have quite innocently enough performed the duties of a matchmaker.

Consequently the post requires those finished in social graces and for which hotel managements are willing to pay quite handsomely. Any number of hotels attribute their success largely to the popularity of hostesses and several are under long term contracts.

IN A New York paper this morning I saw a want ad for services of a tinner. Somehow I did not think there were any tinners in the big town. A good tinner had one of the crack jobs in a small town and rode around in a red wheeled buggy on Sunday. After with one foot hanging rakishly over the sideboard—the durn slicker.

THE recent subway disaster in Times sq. created a "subway complex"—a pronounced phobia for underground travel. Yet the subway's record is singularly remarkable for safety. There is in operation 124 miles of subway tunnels and 620 miles of subway tracks, but this was the only great disaster. If a train stops between stations these days, as it frequently does, there is a fomenting hysteria.

AN English engineer once referred to New York's "switchboard brain." The stranger is impressed with its underground mechanics and overhead freedom. All wires in the metropolis are below the surface and here beneath the sidewalks are the city's voice and nervous system. There is a vast and complicated network—valves, switches, push buttons, cables, telegraph and power wires, pneumatic tubes, transit tunnels, huge sewers and pipe lines for gas and steam. They dig foundations from under skyscrapers amid propping them up on stilts and New York achieves more structural wonders above than beneath. But the public never sees them.

THESE underneath marvels are chiefly why New York is always torn up to resemble a shell-scarred battlefield and after you live here awhile—(Voice there is a train leaving every minute)—it gets pretty monotonous.

ANOTHER thing an imported small towner misses here is the gasoline filling station. There are some but comparatively few. The New Yorker is supplied at garages. And thus does the city miss the friendly courtesy of what the outland has found to be about the most polite of all employes meeting the public. They are information bureaus for tourists and rarely accept tips. For with most companies that means instant dismissal.

THE newest in male underthings displayed in a smart haberdashery—athletic designs of sheer silks in hootchy-kootchy pinks, baby blues and lavenders with the replica of the owner's signature monogrammed thereon. And for one who lost climbed out of long sleeved and long legged scratchy underwear two years ago, they are going to be pretty hard to work on to.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A LITTLE girl stood crying at a country station in South Carolina. She had just said goodby to her lover, who was leaving on the Overland train. They had come to the station in a little, cut-down flivver that matched their simple, shabby clothes, and for a moment they had kissed and clung while the rest of us turned away with a sudden choke in our throats. Now the train was pulling out and she was watching, her frantic young heart in her eyes.

And I thought of all the wives and mothers and sweethearts who had watched with aching hearts while their dear ones went from them on pack horses and trains, in covered wagons and aeroplanes and ships.

And how out of that heartache and loneliness and high courage our country had been born.

I have been traveling around our country for the last two months. I have been seeing its great buildings, its stores and its mansions, its theaters and factories, its rich farming lands and crowded waterways, its mines and dams, its hangars and warehouses and ports—all the infinite wealth of a great nation. And of all that wealth I found our richest treasure, not in buildings and banks, but in the tear-filled eyes of a little girl at a station.

The greatest treasure is love.

America is a rich nation and a powerful one, but the hidden source of its strength lies not in riches or power, but in simple human love. The love of a man for a woman, the love of a woman for a man, the love of both for home and child. That is the great sight in America today—from that comes all romance and daventure, all progress and prosperity.

The more I travel the more I see love at work.

I see it peopling lonely farms in Texas—

And section cars on the desert—

I see it building great play parks in Chicago, settlement houses in St. Louis, public baths in San Francisco—

I see it lighting dugouts in Nebraska and flaming from palaces on Riverside drive—

I see it bargaining for vegetables by the Ghetto street stands of New York, washing the white marble stoops of Philadelphia's little red brick houses, whispering its sweet vows in the shadow of the White House, toiling in great steel mills of Pittsburgh, sweat streaming down bared torsos.

Everywhere in America I see love at work bracing itself for adventure, dreaming its dreams, spreading its frontiers—BUILDING A NATION.

Perhaps some day life will give that little girl in South Carolina riches and fame, but it will never give her a rarer lovelier thing than that which burned in her eyes today—for in love she has found life's greatest treasure.

Not Forgetting Columbus

by Herbert Kaufman

A pessimist is a bob-cat who doesn't believe in tails. His opinions are the sourings of a mind which views all truth through doubt's smoked glasses.

Confidence wears clearer, stronger spectacles—and therefore sees opportunities never apparent to a short-sighted bigot.

Cynicism is the cloak under which self-confessed failure hides its threadbare and scoreless career.

The chronic scoffer's a dyspeptic suffering from his own undigested ambitions.

Success is impossible without enthusiasm. Progress would be a thousand years nearer its goals if croakers weren't perpetually throwing the switch and derailing express trains of thought.

Majority vote is against every original notion, because the average mind is too lazy or envious to weigh evidence before delivering convictions.

No important discovery, invention or community improvement was launched amid hurrahs.

We would still dwell in wattle huts, travel afoot, wear animal pelts and subsist on raw roots and flesh, if a few intrepid brains in each generation hadn't turned deaf ears to the eternal cry, that "it can't be done."

The winners of the human race, from the builder of the first hand loom down to Marconi, were leered at and sneered at before they were cheered at.

The closest friends of the Wright brothers were sure they were "all up in the air," until they began to fly there.

And half the investors buying Warner stock above par could have owned it at ten cents on the dollar, if they hadn't been such cocksure, smart alecks on the future of talking pictures.

The schoolboy who described an optimist as "a man who fixes your eyes," furnished a much better definition than Noah Webster's.
